MOTOR FOES PLAN FIGHT TO FINISH

By Edward B. Lockett
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Jan. 22—President Roosevelt today declined to be drawn into the automobile strike despite the statement of Labor Leader John Lewis that the workers were looking to him for assistance in their fight against "economic royalists."

"Of course, I think that in the interests of peace there come moments when statements, conversations and headlines are not in order," the President said at his press conference.

Pressed further by a barrage of questions, the President smilingly shook his head and replied to each questioner that he had already answered.

CAREFULLY WORDED

The President's statement brought a carefully worded comment from John L. Lewis, chief of the CIO. Lewis said:

"I could scarcely undertake to interpret the President's words. He alone can define the meaning of his own phrases. Of course, I do not believe, as some have suggested that the President intended to rebuke the working people of America, who are his friends, and who are only attempting to secure the rights guaranteed to them by the law of our country and—under the public policy declared by Congress—the rights guaranteed by the declaration set forth in the Norris-Laguardia act."

AMPLE CONFIDENCE

Later, when reporters pressed the CIO chief further on this point, Lewis added:

"Perhaps we have ample confidence that in the end the President will do what he thinks to be necessary. Of course, we think that the President thinks about

MOTHER ILL, 3 CHILDREN SCALDED

At Waltham Hospital, where she gave birth to a son two days ago, Mrs. John J. McLean of 217 Grove street, Waltham, was notified today that three other children had been carried into the same hospital, badly burned by boiling water.

Five members of the McLean family are now in the hospital—Mrs. McLean; Ann, 6, Dennis, 4, and Esther, 18 months, and the new little brother whom they haven't seen yet.

The three children were chattering about their new brother in the kitchen of their home this morning, while their father was preparing to go to work, when the kettle of boiling water fell on them from the range.

Ann suffered first and second degree burns on the face, chest and abdomen. Dennis has second degree burns on the lower legs, and Esther, who no longer is the baby of the family, has first and second degree burns on the abdomen, right side, right arm and neck.

The McLeans have six children in all. Margaret, 2, was in the kitchen with the others, but scampered away as some of the water fell on her dress. John, Jr., was in another part of the house.

Wage Grant Halts Strike in Milford

Milford, Jan. 22 — Threatened strike of 700 workers in the Archer Rubber Company's mill here was averted today after the intercession of John Campos, state conciliator.

John T. Callahan, president of the company, granted a 10 per cent wage increase. The union had demanded 20 per cent.

Rev. E. J. Dennen Dies; Rites Sunday

The Rev. Ernest J. Dennen, for more than 20 years archdeacon of Episcopal Diocese of Massachusetts, died today at his home, 5 Follen street, Cambridge. Bishop Henry K. Sherrill will officiate at funeral services in St. Paul's Cathedral next Sunday at 3 p. m.

U. S. Expenditures Top 4 Billions

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—Federal expenditures during the fiscal year crossed the $4,000,000,000 line on January 19. The Treasury statement said today that on that date government outlays since last July 1 totalled $4,013,720,699, compared with $4,076,339,120 on the corresponding date a year ago.

Rallying in Spirit, Pope Craves the Sun

Vatican City, Jan. 22 (AP)—Pope Pius, his spirits improved despite intermittent pains in his swollen legs, expressed a desire today to get out into brilliant Roman sunshine.

The Pontiff was lifted from his bed during the afternoon and wheeled into an antechamber, where he received Msgr. Alfredo Ottaviani, assessor of the holy office.

When the prelate congratulated the Holy Father on his improvement, the Pope said he wished he were strong enough to go into a nearby courtyard and bask in the sun.

Awakening after a period of rest, the 79-year-old Pontiff recited prayers from his sickbed today in memory of his predecessor, Benedict XV, who died just 15 years ago.

Dr. Aminta Milani, the Pontiff's chief physician, made a prolonged examination of the Holy Father's condition after he was officially reported to have passed a bad night.

HUSBAND O. K.'D AS BANK HEAD

William P. Husband, Jr., was confirmed unanimously by the Governor's Council today as State bank commissioner.

Lean Henry W. Holmes, of Harvard's graduate school of education, was also confirmed as chairman of the advisory board to the State Unemployment Commission.

Francis Powers of Worcester was confirmed as trustee of Wrentham State School in place of Dr. Abraham Myerson, resigned.

And Governor Hurley appointed Councillor A. F. Burtnett (R.) of Somerville as vice-chairman of the council committee on finance.

The council then recessed for lunch, to consider warrant approvals later.

And reporters were all fairly flabbergasted by the harmonious appearance of all participants. They eyed Councillor Daniel H. Coakley carefully, but he only

120,000 FLEE FLOOD, 12 DEATHS LISTED

Wet, Drear World

CINCINNATI—A national catastrophe hangs over this city of 750,000 souls. Ohio river reaches 70 feet; 50,000 homeless in area; electric service threatened; traction service curtailed. Loss mounts to millions in "greatest flood in history," and the fear of epidemics sweeps the Ohio valley.

PORTSMOUTH, O.—One-third of 43,000 residents driven out when Ohio river flood waters course into city; river tears half-mile gap in earthen levees; sewers opened to save three-mile $1,000,000 concrete wall. Business district under 10 feet of water.

PITTSBURGH—Governor George H. Earle orders state officials to prepare for possible flood emergency as water reaches 27.5 feet, 2.5 feet over flood stage, at confluence of Allegheny and Monongahela rivers. "Golden Triangle" flooded. Loss may reach million.

WHEELING, W. VA.—Wheeling's "Island," death trap for scores in last flood, being inundated. People warnedto flee.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Jan. 22—Flood waters swept 10 states today, leaving death and destruction in their muddy wake.

Hunger stalked the flood wastes and fears of disease increased as the number of homeless reached an estimated 120,000. Deaths in the inundated territory rose to at least 12.

Rescue forces were hampered by flooded highways, broken communication lines and sleet as they struggled to evacuate families, and furnish them food and warmth.

The grim prospect of a major catastrophe hung over cities and towns along the banks of the yellow Ohio, with 15,000 homeless in the Portsmouth area and 10,000 in the Cincinnati district.

School Closings Caused by Rain

Continued rainfall, with little prospect of relief, caused closing of schools in Boston and throughout a number of other cities and towns today.

Superintendent of Schools Patrick J. Campbell of Boston said that he issued the order as a health precaution measure.

"Colds are too widespread," he declared. "There is no need of subjecting children to wetting at a time like this.

"Those who have colds might

Added to the homeless, the injured and the ill were the unemployed, thousands of them forced from water-logged factories.

The nation's flood panorama stretched from Pittsburgh, where waters eddied again into the business district, the "Golden Triangle," to northeastern Arkansas and southeastern Missouri, plagued by heavy rain swirling backwaters and the rising Mississippi.

NAVY LENDS AID

The Ohio reached a stage of 70 feet at Cincinnati today. Meteorologist W. C. Devereux predicted the "greatest flood on record" for Cincinnati and lower river points. A sleet storm whipped the south-

Electrocution Death Escaped by Inch

Miss Ruth Barteaux, 24, of South Acton, may have many years of life left.

But at daybreak this morning she was barely one inch from death by electrocution.

Miss Barteaux was found unconscious with two gashes in her forehead in the elevated railroad pit at the end of the North and South Station shuttle line at the North Station.

When she was discovered by Inspector Patrick Barry, Miss Barteaux's feet were across one of the iron rails and her hands were extended forward just one inch from the deadly third rail.

Had either one of her hands struck the rail as she fell into the pit and was rendered unconscious she would have been electrocuted.

According to police, the woman had apparently lost her balance at the edge of the pit as she awaited arrival of a South Station train.

She was taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital, where she was treated for lacerations of the forehead and held for treatment for a possible skull fracture.

According to the police the girl, a former inmate of the Westboro State Hospital, had been permitted to leave that institution in the care of relatives and had wandered away.

ROOSEVELT STUDIES AUTO STRIKE, WON'T TELL PLANS

LEWIS AND GENERAL MOTORS PLAN FIGHT TO FINISH

workers' rights as we do. I don't know anything about presidential intervention. We haven't asked the President personally to intervene."

Lewis released the text of a telegram which he sent earlier today to the "sit-down" strikers in the Fisher Body plants Nos. 1 and 2 in Flint, Mich.

This message assured the strikers of whole-hearted support by the committee for industrial organization, and urged them to continue their strike towards an honorable settlement," which Lewis said was inevitable if the United Automobile Workers would "stick to it."

REITERATES ATTACK

Lewis reiterated his verbal attack on General Motors, first voiced yesterday, and to which General Motors executives attributed their decision to abandon peace conferences for the moment.

Reporters asked Lewis if the CIO would be willing to permit an election in the General Motors plants to determine the sentiment of workers.

"We have no thought," said Lewis, "of trying to complete in an election campaign with General Motors, knowing their resources and their tactics of coercion and intimidation."

The labor chief condemned as "inaccurate and filled with wrong information," the General Motors statement claiming sympathies of a majority of General Motors workers.

"We claim," said Lewis, "that we are speaking for a majority of General Motors employes, and speaking at their authorization."

Also as yesterday, Lewis predicted that the workers' answer against the plant owners' refusal would end in victory for the union.

Press conferences here ending a month's battle of the C.I.O. which Lewis is conducting against the big motors combine resulted from a whirlwind, six-day tour of Michigan's sit-down strike areas, designed to enlist labor support from all over the country.

Apparently, neither side has asked for presidential intervention, but Lewis, at his press conference, hinted that he believed Mr. Roosevelt should step in and settle things.

"This is no time for neutrality," he said. "And this is no time for pussyfooting. Labor intervened when the President was in jeopardy. The workers expect the President, in a reasonable and legal way, to support them, and we have so advised the government representatives."

Lewis explained that by this last statement, he did not mean that he had asked the President personally to intervene, but that he had expressed his views to Miss Perkins.

There's Hope, Says Sloan, We Must Do Something

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, returned today from Washington conferences on the sit-down strike in General Motors plants with the statement:

"There is hope. I can say that. It's so terribly important. We've got to do something. The situation must be solved."

Sloan, William S. Knudsen, executive vice president, and other officials who were in Washington for the conference, will meet today for a further discussion, Sloan said, and probably will issue a statement.

Asked if he had said it was useless to continue the conferences in Washington because of John L. Lewis' demand that President Roosevelt intervene in behalf of the strikers, Sloan said:

"That was not the reason we left Washington. I did not make that statement."

He declined to answer a question as to whether General Motors would attempt to reopen its plants without further negotiations with the strikers.

Economic Fear Grips Cities in Michigan

Detroit, Jan. 22 (INS)—A dark cloud of economic fear hangs over the motor cities of Michigan today.

With the breaking off of the Washington negotiations, the strike's grip tightened on the throat of retail business throughout a motor empire.

Cities such as Flint, Pontiac, Lansing and Saginaw feared to starve as the automobile business feasts or starves.

In Michigan alone, according to the latest General Motors figures, 98,672 persons are idle as a result of the strike. In 19 states—Michigan, Indiana, Maryland, Ohio, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia and New York—the corporation estimates 134,667 are jobless.

What the situation means in Michigan, which is most severely affected, was determined by a survey of the present status of retail business in four typical cities undertaken by International News Service.

In Flint (population 146,442) 36,772 workers are idle.

In Pontiac (population 64,879) inquiry indicated retail business has fallen off sharply since the strike started. There are 9100 idle there now.

In Lansing (population 78,421) officers of the chamber of commerce said that so far the city's retail trade had not suffered "much" but that the pinch had been felt more painfully in the last few days. Lansing has the same number out of work as Pontiac—9100.

In Saginaw (population 80,685) there are 7859 idle.

It is quite clear such shut downs on a greater scale than yet experienced will be inevitable should the strike continue.

SCHOOLS SHUT IN HEAVY RAIN

get worse. Healthy children might get sick walking to and from home."

Chelsea, Revere, Woburn, Needham and Peabody closed all their schools. In Brookline, Arlington and Marblehead the elementary classes were suspended. In Malden the morning session of all schools were canceled.

Combined with the rain was the unusual temperature for this time of year. In Boston, at 8 o'clock this morning the thermometer was 41 degrees, 10 degrees higher than in the California cities of Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The weather man said that rain was likely for the next 24 hours, with a possible clearing spell and lower temperatures tomorrow, sometime. But he said that yesterday in making his prediction for today.

AVERAGE ABOVE NORMAL

So far this month the average daily temperature reading has been 11 degrees above normal.

Rainfall for the 22 days of the month so far had reached a total of 2.71 inches, far exceeding the normal fall of 2.48 inches for the entire 31 days in other years.

Traveling on the highways was still hazardous, although the slush of Wednesday's snowfall had been washed away.

Rivers were rising in the north and hundreds of calls were made to municipal sewer departments to pump out flooded cellars.

The entire Boston public works department was also called out today, mostly to keep catch basins clear and allow the streams in the streets to be carried away.

smiled and passed them politely.

Then they asked the governor:

"Was the session peaceful, Your Excellency?"

"Most peaceful," he replied. "It was, in fact, as peaceful a meeting as any man might wish to preside over."

So that, apparently was that, as far as the much-mooted clash between Coakley and the governor was concerned.

NO TEST FOR GOVERNOR

All sorts of reports had been prevalent. That Coakley would try to wreck the gubernatorial appointment program, that a test of Hurley's council strength would come and such.

Coakley has been more or less at war with the Governor for the past week over the administration's keyno.e of "sane economy" program.

The unpleasantness started when the councillor's son, Timothy W., was fired from the Public Works Department. It was expected to continue today.

Coakley just looked very blank, however, when reporters asked him what his war campaigns were.

"I have any," he said. "And what war?"

HUSBAND SUCCEEDS PIERCE

Bank . Commissioner . Husband succeeds Henry H. Pierce, who resigned to become president of the Merchants' Co-operative Bank of Boston.

Dean Holmes succeeds President-Emeritus A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard.

Councillor Burnett was appointed to preside over the finance committee meeting because of the grave illness of Lieutenant-Governor Francis E. Kelly.

The governor was very much concerned about his lieutenant's condition when he arrived here from Washington today with Mrs. Hurley and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Higgins.

When he was told that Kelly was very ill with bronchitis and influenza, he expressed his deep regret.

MAY COMMENT LATER

The reporters asked him about the "break" with Coakley. His answer was:

"I've read about it in the papers. I might have some comment to make later. I don't know offhand."

The special session of the council was called by Executive Secretary John V. Mahoney, and not the governor, it was learned at that same time.

Governor Hurley looked surprised when reporters asked him about it. Then Mahoney explained.

Realtor Bill Rejected

A bill to create a state board to license real estate dealers and brokers was rejected today without debate in the House of Representatives.

Girl Linked To Escape Plot of 9

A young and attractive girl is believed to have played a leading role in the attempted escape of a batch of prisoners from the detention room of Suffolk County Courthouse Wednesday, it was learned by the Boston Evening American today.

According to information now in possession of Charles street jail officials, this girl visited two of the men allegedly involved in the escape plot that night before the plan was balked.

She is thought to have carried in to them the hacksaw which was found when Deputy Sheriff James A. McNulty discovered a detention room window with wire grilling and bars sawed.

Her arrest may come about today, but because the men have yet to be tried for the offenses on which they were originally committed, it will be kept secret. Otherwise a mistrial might be declared.

There were nine men in the room when McNulty's attention was attracted. Two of these, he reported were actively engaged in the attempted break.

One, he said at the time, refused to stand when ordered. When he was forced to get up the deputy sheriff said the hacksaw was on the seat.

In a washroom, officials found twelve lengths of sheeting which had been torn into strips for a rope to let the alleged plotters out of the two-and-one half-story window. The sheeting came from three cells in Charles street jail.

Unbelievers

St. Louis, Jan. 22 (AP)—Safe crackers apparently do not believe in signs.

F. G. Singer, poultry company manager, told police he had pasted a note on his safe giving the combination and saying there was no money inside.

Burglars knocked the combination off anyway. They found only company records.

The Luck of Life

Third Quad Dies; Fourth Weakens

Montreal, Jan. 22 (Canadian Press)—Three of the Rondeau quadruplets died today after doctors sought to save them by a desperate race over icy roads to a hospital.

The two youngest babies—Joseph Achille Alfred and Marie Lise—died at 8:0 a. m. Joseph Gaston Andre, the eldest who was born two and one-half hours before his brother and sisters, succumbed shortly after 11 a. m.

The one survivor was little Marie Rita, second born, under care in an incubator.

The two boys and two girls born yesterday to Mrs. Arcade Rondeau at St. Thomas Que., were hurried to Montreal in an ambulance which crashed into a snow plow during the trip.

Doctors said their deaths could be attributed to premature birth rather than complications from the collision between the ambulance and snow plow.

Mother Recovering

Mrs. Rondeau apparently unaware the multiple births existed and was recovering remarkably well, said Dr. Joseph Elzear Forest, her physician.

Because of desire for the babies' home, the parents had them taken to the little Roman Catholic Church at St. Thomas before the left for Montreal. Abbe Napoleon Amonot baptized them.

Dr. Forest said the father exclaimed "One" when the first baby was born. As the births continued, his amazement grew to heightening interjections:

"Oh!"

"Oh, oh!"

"Oh, gosh!"

After their arrival at the hospital early today the babies were placed in an incubator. Then they were given warm water with an eyedropper.

The last youngest died at 6:30 a. m. Hospital attendants puzzled as to the identities of the babies, awaiting announcement of the results which alone could identify the names of the survivors.

Wrappings Helped

Fearful the infants, weighing little more than two pounds each, could not live unless placed in incubators, physicians ordered them brought here before dawn.

All reached the hospital alive in an apparently normal in the next few minutes.

At the end of his jarring dash, the ambulance driver was carried from his seat on a stretcher. He, the doctor and one of the nurses accompanying the quadruplets, were injured in the crash.

Physicians attributed the babies' escape to the soft wrapping with which they were encased in individual baskets.

Midwife Assists

The first born came at 3:30 a. m. yesterday before the physician, Dr. Joseph Elzear Forest, could reach the 10-room home of the comparatively prosperous Rondeaus. A midwife of the French-Canadian farming community assisted.

By 7 o'clock, Dr. Forest, 35-year-old country doctor, had delivered the last of the other three, to the astonishment of Papa Rondeau, his seven older daughters, and three aunts.

The oldest was named Joseph Gaston Andre Rondeau. The others, in order of their birth, were called Marie Rita, Joseph Achille Alfred and Marie Lise.

There were no facilities for weighing the "quads." Dr. Forest guessed their weight at two pounds each and said "all seem to weigh about the same."

There had been no preparations for more than one addition to the Rondeau family, so cribs had to be improvised.

The babies, warmly wrapped and protected against the wintry weather with hot water bottles, were laid in beds and chairs in the neighboring women could give spare pieces for them.

Dr. Forest, who has been practicing medicine for 10 years, most of the time in this district, fed the infants nothing but boiled water.

He said he had not been in touch with Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, who delivered the famed Dionne quintuplets, but added, smiling:

"I would have, if there had been five."

HOW Money Does FLY!

TOWNSENDITE HAS $50 LEFT

Chelan, Wash., Jan. 22 (AP)—How money does fly, concluded C. C. Fleming today as the 63-year-old man gazed a bit sadly at only $50.21 of the $200 given him in a spending test last Saturday.

So he brushed aside plans to buy himself a set of false teeth, decided in favor of storing up for the family larder and wondered if there would be any more money coming after this gives out.

"Mr. Lamb (Isom Lamb, Chelan County Townsend manager and donor of the $200) promised to provide $1000 to keep this Townsend thing going and I hope to get another batch of velvety dollars next month," Fleming said. "But maybe he won't and I'll be out of luck. So I am going to make sure mother and I will eat."

A supply of beans, bacon, flour and coffee, with possibly a few cow critters, will use most of the remaining money, Fleming said. He had thought something of getting a new set of teeth, but he has managed without them for years.

What a Man!

"I'm iron-jawed Fleming in proud of his own wardrobe. Donning a $30 overcoat, shoes and a natty hat, he strutted before his 58-year-old wife who has new clothes of her own and a permanent wave.

"Mother," Fleming asked, "is this the same old guy called Fleming? Ain't I some good looker?"

Lamb reiterated today his intention to continue the test for at least six months, using his own money. Fleming probably will be chosen for another test period, he said.

He had specified that Fleming must spend the money in 30 days. The unemployed orchard worker almost has done it in five.

By offering a bonus of 10 cents for every tagged dollar spent, Chelan merchants moved to stimulate growth of the "kitty"—a fund built by charging themselves 2 per cent on every transaction in which a tagged velvetly dollar figures. It is hoped the fund will provide new "pension" payments. As the sixth day of the test started, $1581 was in the fund.

At Brewster, Wash., business men considered adopting the idea to wipe out the municipal debt. Planning to start off by giving $200 to Townsend pension eligible Saturday, they said that after 25 or so of the 500 inhabitants are enrolled for the transaction tax would be used to redeem municipal bonds.

Lynn Probes 'Water Cure' In School

Reports of a "cold water sponge cure" and other corporal punishments at the Cobbet School in Lynn are under investigation, Superintendent of Schools Harvey S. Gruver admitted today.

According to complaints received from teachers at the school, from pupils and from parents, one boy at least was punished by having a spongeful of cold water squeezed on his head.

Another boy is said to have been seized on the wrist with pincers, and another in the side so that the pincers bruised the flesh.

Still another boy pupil, according to complaints, was locked in the room where the ventilator fans operate.

Superintendent Gruver said he had questioned about half of the 18 teachers thus far and is continuing with the rest. He plans to make a report to the school committee next Tuesday evening.

The school is ungraded. Fifteen of the teachers are said to be of the opinion action should be taken by the school authorities, while the remaining three are reported to be satisfied with conditions.

Consciences Hold Man in Slaying

Fall River, Jan. 22—The story of a Fall River couple who said their "conscience bothered them" today led police to reopen investigation of the death of Hormidas Brabant, 61, on November 27, 1934. Arrest of a Pawtucket, R. I., man on suspicion followed.

At the time Brabant's body was found floating in Cook pond here, his death was ruled accidental.

The Fall River couple, however, told police they had given shelter to the suspect arrested today, whom he said he had killed a man. The suspect, held incommunicado, was under questioning by Detective-Captain William O'Brien.

PEABODY MOTHER'S BODY FOUND IN POND

Police Chief John T. McDowell said there were no marks on the body to indicate foul play. Dr. C. L. Buck, who had been summoned, said the body had been in the water about an hour.

Firemen worked over the body with an inhalator, under the direction of Fire Chief Joseph E. Kelley, but the woman could not be revived.

The body was first discovered by Mrs. John Winschenko of Ash cloth tag bearing her name was found inside a black plush coat which the victim was wearing.

Police Chief John T. McDowell was found floating today in Mill Pond, on Sylvan street, Danvers, furnishing police with a puzzling death mystery.

The victim was later identified as Mrs. Carmela De Luca, 48, of Andover street, Peabody, mother of four children.

Identification was made by her daughter, Mrs. Julia D. Pizzillo, who was brought from a nearby hospital to view the body after a

AS I SEE IT

By DAMON RUNYON

(Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 22.—We are told that the man closest to Mr. Roosevelt these days is Frank Walker.

It is said that if Mr. Roosevelt had five friends in a room seeking their advice on some point, one of them would most surely be Mr. Walker, and the man he would detain after the others for a final heart-to-heart word would be Mr. Walker.

DAMON RUNYON

On a strictly political proposition, Mr. Roosevelt would undoubtedly hearken to his big medicine man, Uncle Jim Farley. On intricate tax and financial matters, and on agriculture, and other matters, he would consult his experts and his specialists.

But on any general policy, on any new course, and on men and their works, it is said Mr. Roosevelt likes to hear the voice of Mr. Walker. He regards Mr. Walker as a sound fellow, and as a friend, and you don't have to go far to find the reason for Mr. Roosevelt's high regard for Mr. Walker.

It seems that Mr. Walker doesn't want anything. Not political preferment for himself. Not favor for his own friends. Not money. Nothing at all.

It is mighty easy to like a man who doesn't want anything. It simplifies a friendship. So Mr. Walker, the man who doesn't want anything, stands mighty well with Mr. Roosevelt. Indeed, he is said to be on friendlier footing with Mr. Roosevelt than any man since the late Louis Howe.

Head of Some 200 Film Theaters

Mr. Walker is of Montana, New York and Pennsylvania.

He has no official connection with the Washington administration at this time, unless you can call the chairmanship of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee an official connection.

He was once head of the national emergency council of the New Deal, and Mr. Roosevelt brought him in here as a sort of co-ordinator of the various branches of the New Deal family. But Mr. Walker isn't politically minded, and he has his own business to look after.

He is the favorite nephew of old Mike Commerford, the veteran theatrical man of Pennsylvania, and is head of Uncle Mike's interests, which take in upwards of 200 movie theaters, at this time. Looking after those theaters is a big job in itself.

The political game isn't exactly Mr. Walker's dish for another reason. He is a sensitive chap, and doesn't relish the criticism that goes with politics. His name has been suggested in connection with Uncle Jim Farley's job as Postmaster-General, and as Secretary of the Treasury.

It is a fair, even money bet that you couldn't run fast enough to give Mr. Walker either job, or any other political job.

Uncle Jim Farley Dug Him Up

He has plenty of money of his own. It is said that Uncle Jim Farley first dug him up when Uncle Jim was scouting around for funds to carry on Mr. Roosevelt's first campaign for the presidency.

Mr. Walker contributed a considerable sum. He was one of the original Roosevelt men. The exact date of Mr. Roosevelt's attraction to Mr. Walker is not known, but it may have been one day soon after Mr. Roosevelt's first election, when Mr. Roosevelt perhaps sent for Mr. Walker and asked him what he wanted.

We can imagine Mr. Roosevelt's eyebrows lifting to the line of his hair, which would have been quite an eyebrow lift even then, when Mr. Walker said: "Nothing."

"An ambassadorship?" perhaps Mr. Roosevelt said. "A nice spot like Cuba, for instance? An assistant secretary or something?"

"Nothing," Mr. Walker probably said.

"A little job in the War Department for a brother? Or a spot with the Internal Revenue Bureau for a second cousin? Something for an old pal?"

"Nothing," we suppose Mr. Walker persisted.

"Nothing? You are sure you mean nothing?"

"Nothing at all."

Then we can imagine Mr. Roosevelt drawing Mr. Walker to his bosom, and saying:

"You are my friend henceforth, and forevermore."

You see the percentage of men in this country who want nothing is very low. It is about one to every 10,000,000 of population. A man who wants nothing, especially from the administration, is almost entitled to place in the National Museum.

He Has No Axe Under His Coat

When you ask the advice of a man who wants nothing, you may be reasonably sure that, as he gives it, he has no axe under his coat, awaiting a chance to slap it against your grindstone.

So Mr. Walker, the man who wants nothing, has the ear of Mr. Roosevelt, a greatly coveted privilege, indeed, though we understand that Mr. Walker doesn't want even that. You can see that he is a most unusual character.

He is just about fifty, a solid, fine looking man, who originated in Butte, Montana. His brother, Tom, used to be a famous district-attorney out there. Mr. Walker is married, has two children, and makes his home in New York.

He went to Notre Dame back down the years, and played on the scrubs there. He still maintains close relations with Notre Dame, which, coincidentally enough, gave Mr. Roosevelt a degree. Some say Mr. Walker had something to do with that.

He is a most devout man, and when we say devout, we mean just that. Uncle Jim Farley is only the second steadiest church goer among the New Dealers. Mr. Walker is top man. He is devoted to his church.

He is a good-natured, friendly chap.

His hobbies are football and hearing. He seldom misses a big Notre Dame game and he keeps close track of the fighters, a hold-over from his days in Butte, when he was a consistent follower of the great Stanley Ketchel.

He and Uncle Jim Farley are very close friends. They have much in common. They are both abstemious, church-going family men. Their tastes are similar. They both like Mr. Roosevelt.

They differ mainly in that Mr. Walker wants nothing.

This is no reflection upon Uncle Jim Farley. As a matter of fact, he doesn't want anything himself now. He's got it.

1200 Seamen Vote To End Strike

State representative James Burke was given a testimonial dinner by 300 friends and supporters at Chestnut Ranch Hall, Hyde Park.

NAZI COLONIAL DREAM NEARS REALITY

Berlin, Jan. 22 (AP)—Persistent yet officially denied rumors amid the ranks of Reichsführer Adolf Hitler's black-uniformed "Schutz Staffel" today had it that Germany's colonial dream would be partly realized January 30.

That is the day Der Fuehrer will address the Reichstag, commemorating four years of Nazi power in Germany, and members of the bodyguard heard the Reich was about to lease part of Portuguese Angola for 99 years.

Angola, containing 476,732 square miles, covers a section of Africa twice as large as Germany itself and has many precious raw materials which are either scarce or non-existent in Germany. These include gold, silver, copper, manganese, cotton and rubber.)

ENGINEERS READY

That the rumors were taken seriously was apparent from the fact that many young German engineers, technicians, wireless operators and the like were making definite preparations to go to Angola soon after the Reichstag session.

The press, however, turned German talk to another quarter.

Chancellor Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobachter, attacked Czechoslovakia as the Soviet Union's military outpost in central Europe.

Going beyond a thinly veiled warning from the foreign office to the border state to revise its attitude to Germany while opportunity remained, the Nazi leader's paper definitely linked Czechoslovakia to Russia.

MAKES 2 CHARGES

Hitler's organ made two definite charges:

1—Czechoslovakia is drifting into Communism.

2—Its airports are being enlarged and improved in preparation for use by Soviet bombers.

(In Prague, Czechoslovakian officials said they were not unduly alarmed as it is not the first time such bizarre language has come from Berlin.)

Yesterday, Beobachter decried the Czech offer to allow foreign military attaches to see for themselves there were no Soviet warplanes in the country.

RUSSIA AGREES TO ARMS BAN

Geneva, Jan. 22 (INS)—Russia, through its foreign minister, Maxim Litvinoff, today accepted in principle the France-British proposal for a ban on arms and munitions to both sides in the Spanish civil war.

Litvinoff agreed to the plan at a conference with Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister.

Million Slain in Spain's Red War

London, Jan. 22 (INS)—Spain's civil war has cost the lives of one million Spaniards, Cabinet Minister Orsie of the Valencia government was quoted by the Daily Mail today as saying.

CRISIS SPLITS JAPAN CHIEFS

Tokyo, Jan. 22 (INS)—Military and civil leaders formed battlelines in Japan's parliamentary crisis today with dissolution of the diet or resignation of Premier Koki Hirota's government seemingly inevitable.

The war office issued a statement declaring it cannot co-operate longer with political parties "which are blocking essential reforms at a moment when Japan stands at the crossroads."

This unequivocal declaration of policy in itself lent confirmation to the very charges which precipitated the present crisis—allegations that the army under General Count Juichi Terauchi, war minister, has agreed to instil dictatorial political powers.

Big Zep to Make 9 Trips This Year

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Nine scheduled flights for the airship Hindenburg between Frankfurt of Friedrichshafen, Germany, and Lakehurst, N. J., this year were announced today by the Hamburg-American Line-North German Lloyd as agents for the Zeppelin operators, Deutsche Zeppelin Reederei.

The Hindenburg will initiate its intercontinental "shuttle service" in 1937 on May 3.

REDS RAIN TONS OF BOMBS ON REBEL ARMY

By the Associated Press.

Socialist airmen five times today attempted to break the lines of Madrid's Fascist besiegers.

Squadrons of government planes dropped tons of bombs on Fascist lines south and west of the beleaguered capital, while infantrymen were capturing a strategic hill dominating the northwestern battle zone.

Portugal, long fearful that such civil strife would spread through the entire Iberian peninsula, blamed two days of terroristic bombings on international agitators and said the "Spanish Reds" had previous knowledge bombs would explode in Portuguese public buildings, including the War and Education Ministries.

Insurgent headquarters at San Sebastian added a threat to the complicated international situation, announcing the Fascist fleet in Biscay bay had been ordered to halt and inspect any vessels encountered in waters controlled by insurgents.

Germany, meanwhile, made ready to reply to the British note demanding a ban on foreign volunteers. The note, being put in final form after Reichsführer Hitler's approval, will be favorable in tone, but will make no detailed commitments.

Plans for an insurgent coup in autonomous Catalonia, reports from Perpignon, France, said, were frustrated when a ton of dynamite was discovered in a villa outside Barcelona. Directions for aiding the landing of Fascist troops also was found, the reports declared.

Liner Refloated

Mombasa, Kenya Colony, Jan. 22 (INS)—The liner Llandaff Castle, which went aground yesterday off Zanzibar with 100 passengers, was reflloated today, apparently undamaged.

LABORITES TO DRAFT STATE NRA PLAN

The final features of the NRA are incorporated in the Massachusetts Federation of Labor's new minimum wage bill, the federation's legislative agent declared today.

The bill prescribes minimum labor standards for employes of concerns manufacturing or furnishing supplies to the state, no contract in excess of $500.

According to Kennedy, federation legislative agent at the state house, stating it is the first "Black-Wheeler-Healey Bill" introduced in any state legislature.

The measure is patterned after the federal Walsh-Healey act, passed during the Roosevelt administration, under which contracts for more than $10,000 worth of federal supplies are limited to companies meeting prescribed labor standards.

The state bill would require of manufacturers affected a minimum wage, eight-hour day, and payment of a wage established by the Massachusetts department of labor and industries as the "prevailing wage for an occupation or industry."

It would require an employer supplying material to the state to conform to the National Labor Relations Act relative to how the employer's business is wholly conducted within Massachusetts.

The bill would also prohibit the employment of boys under 16 and girls under 18 on contracts for equipment supplied the state.

Detroit 'Dillinger Gang'

Trooper Killer's Aides Confess

Detroit, Jan. 22 (INS)—Two confessed members of Alcide (Frenchy) Benoit's gang of robbers and kidnapers were seized today, police said, revealing a start in crime closely paralleling that of the Dillinger gang.

The men, Joseph Rocco, 28, and Charles Lyon, 21, confessed, police said, to several robberies and kidnapings here and in Flint.

Like Benoit and the latter's pal, Mike Del Becio, they had been arrested from Isola, Reformatory.

Benoit has confessed he killed State Trooper Richard Hammond. His was captured Wednesday night in a Hazeldale hide-hunt started after the trooper's body was found handcuffed to a steel mail post near Monroe, Mich.

Joe Berlo, alias John Smith, was Benoit's companion on the kidnaping of a used car salesman that led to the slaying of Trooper Hammond. He pleaded guilty and faced a life sentence tomorrow as a habitual offender.

FALS OF DILLINGER

The police of all four men connect them in Isola Reformatory, it was while in Michigan City prison in Indiana that a friendship in crime developed between John Dillinger, Harry Pierpont, Charles Makley and others.

Rocco and Lyon were seized in their beds at their homes here by police and Detroit officers.

The latter fell to be pulled by the quartet headed by Benoit, police said, during the kidnaping and robbery of five Greenwood road car salesmen of Flint. Characters was taken out into a field and his car, burned.

Detroit police planned to question them over to Flint police.

"Frenchy" Gets Life With Guilty Plea

Monroe, Mich., Jan. 22 (AP)—Alcide (Frenchy) Benoit confessed slayer of State Policeman Richard C. Hammond, was sentenced to life imprisonment in southern Michigan prison today after he pleaded guilty to first degree murder.

Circuit Judge G. Arthur Rathbun imposed the sentence after hearing from Sheriff Joseph Bartley and State Police Sergeant Orva Jackson details of the confession Benoit made after his arrest Wednesday night. The judge also talked with the small killer in his chambers.

Benoit listened calmly to the sentence. Then he asked if it might be changed to the Marquette branch prison. He did not explain his request. The judge replied that he probably would be transferred to the Marquette prison, but that the sentence would stand.

A beautiful 25-year-old red-haired woman smartly dressed, was quizzed for more than two hours today with investigators in connection with alleged graft and vice in Brookline.

Her identity was closely guarded by officers at Dedham courthouse. At the request of Sheriff Samuel H. Capen, newspaper photographers were forbidden to take pictures in the courthouse corridors. This it was explained, was to guard the identity of the witness.

The special force of investigators worked until 4 a. m. today and then resumed duty at 8 a. m.

District Attorney Dewing is due back from his vacation Saturday and will be in his Dedham office Monday. Three days before the grand jury is scheduled to hear the evidence.

Eight more witnesses were scheduled to appear at the district attorney's office today to tell their conditions in Brookline. Of the two men first to arrive, one was identified as a former investigator of the 1933 Massachusetts Crime Commission.

The Massachusetts students, recently chosen as that state's outstanding young historians, enacted their most unusual drama in the old Senate chamber of the State House, since the Capital of the United States.

IN SEATS OF MIGHTY

One by one, the girls and boys took their places in the very chairs occupied nearly two centuries ago by George Washington, Governor Randolph, of Virginia, Ben Franklin and other famous patriots.

And with solemnity befitting the occasion, they rehearsed from memory the inspiring pageantry they had seen early in the morning in a film shown exclusively for them in the newly-opened national archives building at Washington.

The room, unchanged during almost 200 years, was the very one shown in the motion picture. Only the actors differed.

But the sincere veneration for the nation's founders, and their enduring work did not differ, even though young women in stylish modern attire portrayed many of the roles of the all male cinema cast.

State Senator Harry Phoebus of Maryland, who dropped in on the presentation and called other state officials to witness it, declared:

WIN HIGH PRAISE

"I think this is the grandest thing I have ever seen in all my years in government. Truly, Massachusetts boys and girls are a credit to the nation."

Later he called photographers and posed with the students for a picture to be framed and kept in the State House.

Following their impromptu play, the Bay State group were guests at the U. S. Naval Academy.

There they toured the extensive grounds, visited the many buildings, entered the famous tomb of John Paul Jones, mingled with the midshipmen and even found time to go to the waterfront and inspect the Navy's new destroyers.

The Annapolis visit followed a thrill-packed morning for the tour contest winners.

Hailed in a chartered bus from one part of Washington to another, the students were guests at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where they saw more than a billion dollars in stamps and currency.

SEE MONEY MADE

Especially were they attracted by a press that rolled off $100 bills at the rate of one a second.

At the Senate office building, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts was the students' host.

There, they met many of the famous statesmen of the nation, including Massachusetts Senator Walsh, New Hampshire Senator Bridges, Maine Senator White and

Students On Radio

Winners of the Boston Evening American Inauguration Tour Contest who return to Boston this evening following a three-day visit in the nation's capital, will relate their thrilling experiences in a special broadcast over Station WMEX at 8 o'clock tonight.

The thrills of witnessing President Roosevelt taking the oath of office, the inaugural parade and the social functions that preceded and followed the inauguration in which the high school boys and girls participated, will be told during the broadcast.

for a few minutes saw Vice President Garner.

Near was the United States Capitol, with its picturesque grounds, galleries, shrines and innumerable wonders.

The House of Representatives was convening and the students sat in the gallery as the session opened.

Noon found the boys and girls at the White House, where they saw the famous rooms, beautiful portraits of Presidents and their wives and displays rich in historic tradition.

At the Pan-American Union, a monument to the unity of interest of Pan-America and one of the most beautiful structures in the world, they saw the world famed ballroom. And in the patio, a veritable heaven of tropical splendor, they posed for photographs.

GET PRIVILEGES

Met by friends in the capital, Walter F. Frank, Jr., Ronald Ward, Joseph E. Boothroyd, Charles F. Savage and Walter Chasuk were privileged to see interesting congressional library and museum departments seldom opened to tourists.

Miss Mary McAnulty and Miss Ethel Walker visited Washington's Trinity College, where Miss McAnulty will be a student in September.

In separate groups, other students toured Washington until late, packing into minutes the excitement of a lifetime, visiting embassies, legations, the National zoo, Ford's old theater and riding in cars along the famous Massachusetts avenue and through the beautiful residential sections.

"I always get results from my Want Ads in the Boston American-Sunday Advertiser. I've rented several apartments through the American-Advertiser and always use this medium for quick action results," says Dr. B. Berry of Washington St., Boston.

JOBS AND PAY TOP 80 P. C. OF BOOM DAYS

Employment and payrolls in December reached the highest level since May, 1930, reports compiled by the state department of labor and industries showed today.

Employment reached a peak of 84 per cent of the same three year average.

More than 1700 Massachusetts manufacturing establishments were polled for these statistics and it was found that the average weekly worker earnings were $22.54, an increase of $1.26 over the previous month.

MILL WORKERS FORTUNATE

Notable was the fact that while the employment increase over December, 1935, was 9 per cent, payrolls for the same period showed a 20 per cent jump.

One of the biggest gains was in the woolen and worsted goods mills. Fifty-nine of these were polled and showed an increase in employment over November of 8 per cent and a 25 per cent increase in total wages paid.

Cotton textile plants increased the number of workers 1 per cent, but wages 11 per cent. Sixteen textile dyeing and finishing plants reported an employment increase of 2 per cent and payroll increase of 17 per cent.

This improvement in the textile field, long looked upon as the backbone of the state, was marked also in silk and rayon mills, men's clothing plants, hats and shoe cut, stock and finding and textile machinery, the report said.

228 FIRMS GIVE BONUSES

Returns from 328 boot and shoe plants showed an employment jump of 3 per cent from November to December and a payroll increase of 12.8 per cent for the same period.

The general pay increases in the textile field in December continued to raise the general total; it was pointed out. More than 71,000 workers benefitted 9.2 per cent in their pay.

In addition, 228 establishments gave bonuses, it was reported, although these were not counted as the statistics.

Griffin Invited To Irish City

Dublin, Ireland, Jan. 22—William Griffin, editor and publisher of the New York Enquirer, was invited today by Major Walsh of Drogheda to visit that city where he would be given a civic welcome.

Griffin stated that prayer he would go there, if time permits, before his departure for New York.

Major Walsh asked the publisher whether he thought the war debts owed to the United States would prevent this country from being drawn into any future European war. Griffin said there has developed a "conspiracy of silence" on war debts; that European countries no longer denounce the United States for demanding payment.

He asserted the debtors are working to avoid antagonizing the United States, thinking they may need her aid in the next war.

38 Bailed in N. Y. Surety Fraud Plot

New York, Jan. 22 (AP)—Thirty-eight persons were free on bail today pending arraignment in Kings County Court, Brooklyn, on conspiracy charges in District Attorney William F. X. Geoghan's drive to bring up what he said was a wholesale plot to defraud 100 life insurance companies.

The group was accused of ferreting out persons suffering from fatal diseases and insuring them heavily after sending a substitute to take the physical examinations.

Mussolini Skiers Stripped to Waist

Terminio, Italy, Jan. 22 (AP)—Premier Mussolini set a new style today for Italian skiers when he defied his valet, weather and aped over the crisp snow nude to the waist.

Others at the resort immediately followed Il Duce's example.

85 Boston Police Stricken by Colds

Eighty-five members of the Boston police department were on today's sick list, most of them reporting colds and grippe. Several days this week there were 150 on the sick list.

Al Smith, Jr., Case State Witness

Anne G. Dronillard, witness for the state at trial of two men charged with extorting $12,000 from Al Smith, Jr., relaxes after testifying in New York.

CARDINAL AIDS FUND DRIVE

A letter from Cardinal O'Connell urging support of the 1937 Community Fund campaign of Boston will be read in all Catholic churches of the archdiocese on Sunday, officials of the Cardinal announced today.

"All public spirited citizens are joined in a common effort," the letter states. "Their endeavor, in which we all share, is to raise the sum of $4,100,000, for the great charitable agencies of Boston.

"I most sincerely and heartily endorse this great community undertaking which each year helps more than one hundred hospitals, health and social agencies, to carry on their work."

BISHOP SHERRILL SPEAKS

The Cardinal's endorsement and appeal was read today to team captains and assistants who met with Bishop Henry Knox Sherrill at the Copley-Plaza for one of their last organization sessions.

Bishop Sherrill told the workers that their task required of them imagination and a little of the spirit of adventure and hardihood," in addition to zeal.

"The trouble with most of us is that we are not sufficiently imaginative.

"VISIT HOSPITALS"

"We somehow lose the human values in a great campaign like this. What we need is imagination enough to translate sums of money into terms of human needs and relief of suffering.

"Take a few hours off, and go through the wards of one our hospitals. Look into those faces. Go into the offices of the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children or the Family Welfare Society. Watch what goes on there for half an hour.

"Then you'll go out on the job of soliciting with sympathy and understanding."

Permits Sought For 2 Bus Lines

Before the state public utilities commission today were petitions from the Boston Elevated Railway, seeking permits for new bus lines in Brookline and Newton.

The Brookline basis would run between the junctions of Brookline avenue and Emerald street, Brookline avenue and Pearl street and Washington and Pearl streets.

The Newton buses would run 350 feet between northern and southern Boylston street traffic lanes near the Newton-Brookline line.

Triple Probe of Subway Crash

Three departments of the Boston Elevated Railway today are investigating the Boylston street subway derailment in which one employee was killed, another seriously injured and a score of passengers shaken up.

GRIEF IN PRIVATE

Mother, Paroled Son Disappear

Ashamed to share her grief with her Somerville friends, Mrs. Mary White, 71-year-old mother, took her errant former convict son, John J. Killian, 51, from the hands of the law in New York and dropped from sight today.

Killian violator of a Massachusetts parole when he left this country, was freed by a New York court on a charge of vagrancy, preferred against him when he suddenly gave himself up to police after a four-year vagabond tour of the world's distant ports, because he was "tired of it all."

His white-haired little mother, happy to see him once more but sorrowful at the circumstances of the reunion, travelled to Somerville to New York and visited with him for his cell. Then she sat in the court room while Magistrate Harris dismissed the vagrancy charge. Massachusetts authorities do not want him.

Wondering the pair walked from the courtroom. Mrs. White told police:

"I can't go back to Somerville. I have so many nice friends there and many of them did not know of this. I am disgraced."

They left in a taxicab. They have not returned to Somerville. No one knows where they have gone.

THOUSANDS FLEE HOMES IN MIDWEST FLOOD AREA

ern Illinois found zinc, breaking telephone and telegraph communications and adding new hardships to the army of workers reinforcing dikes and levees.

Shawneetown, assisted by high water, threatened with the worst flood since 1913, was completely cut off when wires went down.

Naval reservists went on the air immediately to establish radio contact with the stricken area.

WATER SUPPLY THREATENED

At Pittsburgh, water crept through the streets of the industrial district for the first time since the devastating inundation last March. Some street car service was halted and power failures were reported.

Rampaging streams in middle Tennessee brought new human misery and property damage, with the total refugees exceeding 1500. More rain threatened to add power to the swollen Cumberland River, now at 51 feet, 11 above flood stage, at Nashville. The city's water supply at Clarksville was threatened.

River front areas of Johnstown, Pa., were inundated by flood waters from the Stony Creek River and residents retreated to higher ground.

The list of dead by states was: Illinois, 5; Ohio and West Virginia, 7 each, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Missouri, 1 each.

DISEASE IS THREAT

The Ohio poured through a broken levee at Lawrenceburg, Ind., driving 500 residents to high ground. It forced officials of Portsmouth, O., to flood the business and industrial districts purposely to save a million dollar sea wall.

The spreading waters cut off many cities from light and power sources and flood supplies. Stricken communities called for serum and vaccine to forestall typhoid and smallpox inroads. Five members of the family at Dayton, Ky., were quarantined with scarlet fever.

At Aurora, Ind., flood waters drenched waterworks machinery, leaving only 250,000 gallons, or a three days' supply, available in an automatic tank. Other Indiana towns—Troy, Tell City and Cannelton—were without water. Towns in West Hanesville, Hardinsburg, Clowerport, Lewisport and Irvington in Kentucky, Vincennes and Terre Haute in Indiana, also reported water supplies.

RED CROSS ASKS AID

The Red Cross called for more relief equipment in Indiana and special nurses joined support in stricken areas.

Gov. George H. Earle ordered Pennsylvania officials in Pittsburgh to prepare for any possible emergency. He said he was determined to avoid a repetition of the 1,000,000 Pittsburgh flood disaster of last St. Patrick's day.

Nearly West Virginia counties more than 5200 flood homeless in Huntington, Pt. Pleasant and Parkersburg and the Monongahela was climbing out of its banks again. Dean Harvey, South Parkersburg, was drowned when his car plunged into swollen Deals Run, an Ohio tributary.

Railroad service between Louisville and Cincinnati and West of Louisville was cancelled by most lines. The Kentucky militia was held ready for instant mobilization and 300 guardsmen already were on duty. Water reached cellblocks in the reformatory at Frankfort but prisoners were not endangered. Rain continued unabated.

Public Mess veteran newspaperman, said the Evansville flood was the worst in the county's history. Imploring American Legion men and WPA workers rescued families. Rain continued unabated.

Heavy rains brought a further spread of 30 Francis River backwaters in southeastern Missouri and northeastern Arkansas.

WARNED TO FLEE

Motorcycle crews, searching all night for marooned families, brought out 300 persons. At Cardwell, Mo., 500 workers labored to keep levees intact. Army engineers warned 1500 persons to leave the Big Eight-New Madrid, Mo., area south of Cario, Ill.

The midwestern office of the Red Cross at St. Louis estimated 4000 persons were homeless in Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois. In Arkansas and Missouri Tennessee an estimated 250,000 acres were under water.

All cities, protected by a flood wall, engineers predicted the Mississippi river would reach a 54.5 foot stage. The Wabash river neared its record 1913 level at Mauvie, Ill., driving out families there and at Golconda.

People Flee "Death Trap Isle" in Wheeling

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 22 (AP)—Residents of Wheeling's "island," a residential section in the middle of the Ohio river, were ordered from their homes today as the stream climbed ever higher.

Many died on the "island" last March when the raging Ohio swept it from end to end, washing down houses and buildings, including a big tabernacle.

Police Captain Albert Custer said the Ohio had topped its flood stage of 36 feet in the mid-stream section during the week ending January 16.

A total of 21,258 cases were reported, compared with 12,345 the previous week. Officials said the reports were incomplete.

Flood Sweeps "Golden Triangle" in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22 (AP)—Flood waters spilled into the "Golden Triangle" today with in sizes of a half to a steady rising rate. The Allegheny, at a stage of nearly 30 feet the waters rolled into the lowest parts of the many-million dollars business district of this industrial city.

As they crept along the low streets, W. S. Hutchinson, U. S. weather observer, predicted three feet more of flood by tomorrow.

Invasion of the "Golden Triangle"

Salem Plane Off to Aid Flood Zones

A Coastguard plane, piloted by Lieutenant Perry S. Lyons, took off from Salem today for Evansville, Ind., to lend aid in the flood-stricken area.

With Lyons were August Bannenberg, radio operator, and Rupert Germaine, machinist's mate. The plane is a single motored amphibian used for observation and scouting.

Lieutenant Lyons has made several merry flights along the New England coast within the past year or two.

The plane will make a stop for refueling at Floyd Bennett airport, Brooklyn, N. Y.

by the muddy waters of the Allegheny and Monongahela was the first time—despite several minor flood threats—that the waters have entered the district since last March.

QUIZ TRADER'S SON IN DEATH

Snow Hill, Md., Jan. 22 (INS)—In a surprise move Richard Trader, 18-year-old son of Clarence Trader, affinities magnate whose mysterious death has created a sensation on the eastern shore of Maryland, was taken into custody early today and is being questioned by county authorities.

Trader's fingerprints have been taken and sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation at Washington.

The fingerprints of his pretty 36-year-old mother, Jeanette Trader, estranged from the utilities company president, were forwarded to Washington two days ago together with the revolver found beside Trader's body in the house in which the couple formerly lived.

Influenza Cases Doubled in Week

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—The public health service said today influenza cases almost doubled during the week ending January 16.

A total of 21,258 cases were reported, compared with 12,345 the previous week. Officials said the reports were incomplete.

That First Step

St. Paul, Jan. 22 (AP)—Clyde L. Scott drove his truck onto a greasing hoist in a filling station.

The attendant pulled a lever. The truck rose six feet.

Scott opened the truck door and stepped out.

At the City Hospital, physicians said Scott suffered a scalp cut and concussion.

PITTSBURGH'S GOLD TRIANGLE UNDER WATER

Pittsburgh, Jan. 22 (AP)—The steel city's three big rivers surged upward today, flowing into bordering parts of the downtown "Golden Triangle" and threatening to rise to a crest of 35 feet—eight feet above flood stage.

Buildings were evacuated near "The Point"—confluence of the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio Rivers—and merchants in lower stores moved stocks to higher floors, fearing a repetition of the $250,000,000 disaster of last March.

Governor George H. Earle, in Washington since the inauguration ordered Major-General Edward C. Harmon, commander of the National Guard and other state officials to Pittsburgh.

BUILDINGS ABANDONED

On the basis of early reports, Meteorologist W. S. Brotzman predicted a stage of 32 feet at the "Point" tomorrow.

The river had on its water several blocks into the lower North Side, where many buildings were abandoned after the March flood. All over western Pennsylvania rivers were running ful. At Johnstown, the Stony Creek river reached flood level at 32 feet after an all night rain, and then slowly began to drop. Further rains were feared.

Many towns and highways were flooded in the west-central area comprising Somerset, Bedford, Cambria and Jefferson counties.

The rise in Pittsburgh was slow but steady.

MILLIONS AWASH

The "Golden Triangle," one of the world's most wealthy business sections, functioned almost normally and office-workers and shoppers filled the district as usual.

The flood crest of 35 feet, predicted is still 15 feet under the great tide that submerged the vast industrial area in the previous inundation.

The waters flowed into Water Street at Liberty avenue and also by shops pull pumps into motion in an effort to clear their basements.

The Allegheny flowed over Duquesne way, at the end of the business district, and two feet of water entered the old exposition building. Shore avenue and Brodhead street, at the north side residential district, were partly inundated. About four blocks of Brookdale street were under water.

"Stop and Enter" Cambridge Signs Ruled Illegal

Two hundred and forty-five "stop-and-enter" signs in the City of Cambridge have been declared illegal because they do not come up to the state requirements it was learned today.

Edgar F. Coppell, traffic engineer for the State Department of Public Works, in a letter today notified Mayor John B. Leech that the full board report had ruled the signs illegal.

Coppell pointed out that no "Stop-and-Enter" signs are used elsewhere in the state and that it is apparent many of the signs were erected without study as to their actual necessity.

Coppell's letter states that the signs are unfair to motorists and should be removed.

Quincy City Hall Newsstand O. K.'d

Sam Gray of 36 Lancaster street, Quincy, a World War veteran, not only won permission to retain his newsstand concession in front of the Quincy City Hall but will be given a plot of the city's ground on which to place his stand.

Mayor Thomas F. Hargin, after considering protests against Gray's operation of his stand in front of the City Hall, designated him as head of the tourists' information bureau. The newly-created post will carry no salary, but Gray will receive the plot of city property rent free.

Lynn Clergymen Opposed to Tavern

Two Lynn clergymen led opposition today at a hearing held by the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission on the petition of Albert Ukleja for a tavern license at 521 Boston street, Lynn.

Rev. Jeremiah F. Georan, curate of the Sacred Heart Church, and Rev. Chester H. Hoag, pastor of the Washington Street Baptist Church, opposed the granting of the license, because of the proximity of the proposed tavern to their churches.

Driver Fined $500, Given 'Homework'

Riverhead, N. Y., Jan. 22 (INS)—By this time next year, John Riley, 37, should be convinced of the horrors of automobile accidents.

Pleading guilty to driving while intoxicated, Riley had been sentenced today by Judge Richard W. Hawkins to make a long-hand copy each month for a year of a 2000-word pamphlet "... and sudden death." He was also fined $500.

OHIO CITY UNDER 10 FEET OF WATER

(By the Associated Press)

Portsmouth, O., Jan. 22—Portsmouth's huge flood wall became a waterfall today as the mighty Ohio and rain-swollen Scioto rivers spread their muddy waters over half this city of 45,000.

Filled with driftwood and evidences of their destructive toll farther up the valley, the flood waters churned through the streets of the main business section to a depth of 10 feet and more in some places.

The tide broke over the top of the three-mile, concrete flood wall shortly after dawn and surged over the streets as if through a mill race.

The stage of the Ohio at noon was 62.5 feet. It was rising two inches an hour. Fears were expressed it might exceed the 1913 flood of 67 feet, 10½ inches. A rise of 65 feet may cut off telephone communication.

BIG HOTEL FLOODED

The eight-story Hurth hotel, largest in its city and located two blocks from the river's normal edge, had three feet of water in its lobby.

Evacuation of half the city during the night was accomplished with speed and little confusion.

The 13,000 residents forced to move left their homes to a downpour of rain that had fallen for early 48 hours. Rain continued today.

Every moving van and truck in the city was pressed into service. Hundreds of persons trudged through the wet streets carrying belongings.

Families living in hilltop districts threw open their homes. Refugees filled hospitals and school buildings.

HAVOC IN THE FLOOD

Hundreds of automobiles were parked along streets on high ground. Garages were filled with stocks from stores and household goods from homes.

Stocks of grocery stores were depleted long before they closed. Supplies of electric heaters and coal stoves and electricity, gas and telephone service were assured for a time, at least.

After 10 a. m. transportation was by boat only.

Relief headquarters, set up in the municipal building, received 350 requests to move families and sick persons.

SWEEPS OVER WALL

City Manager Frank Sheehan directed relief activities from his City Hall headquarters. He said he had slept only four hours in four days.

TURNERS FALLS RIVER RISES

State police, keeping a constant check on flood conditions in Massachusetts rivers, reported today the Connecticut river at Turners' Falls was rising rapidly.

Normal flow over the dam at the gatehouse at Turners' Falls is 9000 cubic feet a second, flood level is 30,000 cubic feet, and today the height was 23,000 cubic feet.

The Merrimack river was slightly above normal. In view of the forecast of continued rain, the check will be maintained for several days at least.

Cincinnati's Flood Peril

Catastrophe Over City of 750,000

(By the Associated Press)

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 22—Ever-mounting waters threatened a major flood catastrophe in the Ohio valley today.

The Ohio river reached a stage of 70 feet and Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux predicted "the greatest flood on record" for Cincinnati and lower river points.

He predicted a probable crest between 71 and 72 feet at Cincinnati for tonight or Saturday.

This city of 750,000 people faced the possibility of curtailed if not discontinued electric service.

FREEZE ONLY HOPE

A forecast for colder weather tonight, with continued light rains and probable sleet and snow flurries and temperatures of 20 degrees, brought hope that the rise in the river would halt soon.

Upwards of 50,000 already had been driven from their homes—15,000 in the Portsmouth area, 10,000 in the Cincinnati district, and hundreds in the scores of cities and hamlets bordering the swollen river from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill.

Water slowly entered the business section of Marietta this morning and nearly 1000 persons started to leave their homes.

Temperatures dropped throughout most of the valley region and the weather bureau forecast that the rain would turn into sleet and snow.

CURFEW DURING FLOOD

After putting an interruption in electric service across the River at Covington, Ky., Sheriff Louis Vogt declared an emergency and ordered all persons off the streets by 9 p. m. He said only flood relief workers and persons on official business would be permitted to disregard the curfew hour. City Manager Theodore Kluemper ordered all water turned off to commercial users in order to conserve the supply.

Police here received a report a huge Standard Oil Co. storage plant at Aurora, Ind., was destroyed by flood waters and that several hundred thousand gallons of gasoline and oil were floating on water in the city streets.

DAMAGE IN MILLIONS

Damage was mounting into incalculated millions. There were at least two deaths in the Cincinnati area.

Two hundred Ohio National Guardsmen aided in locating refugees on the Ohio side. Along the flooded edges of four other valley-bordering states similar steps were taken.

Mary B. Bingaman, Red Cross and Works Progress Administration worker at Aurora, estimated at least 1000 families homeless between Lawrenceburg and Aberdeen in Brown County, above Clermont County.

She said another 700 families were homeless at Higginsport, also said although WPA workers removed 250 families yesterday, other hundreds still were marooned on second floors and would have to be brought out as rapidly as possible.

FOOD, FUEL SCARCE

The food and fuel situation was critical, Miss Bingaman said. Unable to reach Cincinnati and Columbus, food supplies were growing low.

H. C. Blackwell, president of the Cincinnati Gas & Electric Co., in a statement said:

"Indications are that if the river continues to rise the supply of electricity from Cincinnati will be curtailed at almost any time, but it will be maintained in part as long as possible.

"There are, however, possibilities of a complete shut-down of the power plants should the rate of rise at the present time be continued throughout the day.

"Even though the worst happens, we hope to obtain sufficient electricity through our interconnections with other cities to render service for the most essential needs."

Street car transportation already had been curtailed in some sections due to interruptions in electric service caused by the flood.

Both power houses serving the city, Blackwell said, were constructed to meet a "river rise in excess of any flood stage on record, but it appears we are reaching a record-breaking high water."

Indiana Levee Break Perils Town of 7000

Lawrenceburg, Ind., Jan. 22 (AP)—Rising swiftly early today, raging Ohio river waters crashed through a levee protecting this town of 7000 citizens and a section almost a mile square and threatened to inundate the rest of the community before many hours passed.

Swollen to record proportions by heavy, overnight rainfall, the muddy, debris-jammed waters first coursed over the levee, then crumbled a gap described as a half mile long.

Fire bells and whistles had warned residents of the danger, and all fled safely to higher ground after snatching a few belongings.

Relief workers said the roar of the river plunging through the gap could be heard "for blocks away."

Firemen in Flood Fight Flames

Cincinnati, Jan. 22 (AP)—Firemen waded in water up to their armpits early today to save the huge machine and repair shops of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad when flames from a blazing warehouse threatened the building. Nearby gasoline storage tanks created an additional hazard.

Flood waters blocked firemen 500 feet from the burning structure.

Hose was loaded into boats and rowed to the flames. Two boats overturned and hurled a dozen firemen into the flood. They rescued themselves despite the handicap of boots, rubber coats and helmets.

Firemen dragged 10,000 feet of hose through water.

Fire Chief Barney Houston estimated the loss at $35,000.

Kentucky Battles 'Worst Flood'; Fears Epidemics

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 22 (AP)—With no relief in sight, Kentucky combatted today a flood that neared the "worst-in-history" stage.

Thousands of persons already had fled their lowland homes. Thousands of others made ready to evacuate as ever-widening streams, fed and agitated by unprecedented mid-winter precipitation, crept into territory inundated only twice before in more than a 50 years.

Power and fuel were shut off at some points. In others utility operations were endangered. Drinking water was scarce, at Greenup; at Ashland, Ky., typhoid fever cases were reported. Health officers moved quickly to prevent epidemics that follow floods.

Welfare agencies, augmented by militia, soldiers, American Legionnaires, CCC enrollees, WPA workers and volunteers struggled to move stricken families to safety. Joseph Kelly, assistant adjutant-general, ordered 2000 National Guardsmen to be ready for mobilization on a moment's notice. Robert Humphreys, state highway commissioner, placed resources of his department at disposal of authorities.

2000 Convicts Man Pumps to Save Prison

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 22 (AP)—Twenty-nine hundred convicts manned pumps in relays when the flooded Kentucky river swept into the State Reformatory here today.

The river swept to a 46-foot level at 7 a. m., putting half the business section under water, lapping at the steps of the historic old capital and washing into more than 1000 homes. The highest level in history was 428 feet in 1883.

An unidentified youth fell off a rescue boat and drowned in downtown Frankfort. An aged Negro woman died of a heart attack after being carried in boats took her from her almost submerged home.

Red Cross Rushes Aid To Stricken Flood Areas

Washington, Jan. 22 (AP)—The National Red Cross established five new disaster headquarters today to handle flood relief in Ohio, Kentucky and Pennsylvania.

Field directors, dispatched from national headquarters here were: Nat Willets to Louisville, W. W. Jefferson to Pittsburgh; Miss Cecile Kennedy to Harrisburg, Paul Monroe Reddy to Cincinnati and Charles Johnson to Portsmouth, O.

No serious health complications have been reported.

CURLEYS DELAY CLIPPER

Miami, Fla., Jan. 22—Ex-Governor James Curley and his bride, vacationing at Miami Beach, the first Pan-American Airways flying clipper ship since the company was founded in 1927, was ordered to turn back to port.

The former governor and his bride had booked passage on the Havana liner, leaving the International Pan-American airport at 1 p. m. Iberia , of the delay in the arrival of mail, passengers were told the ship would not depart until approximately 2 p. m.

The governor and his bride then strolled around the grounds of the world's largest and most beautiful marine base inspecting the huge clipper ships.

Time and time again over the loud speaker system, the governor and his wife were paged after all the other passengers had boarded the plane at 1:45. The plane was held for more than 15 minutes and finally given the order to leave.

Just as it was taking off the water, the governor and his wife appeared. They excitedly explained their baggage was on the plane and company officials ordered the plane, under command of Captain Kenneth Beer, to return to port for the honeymooning couple to board, and the former governor and his bride were enabled to keep their Havana date.

So, over the two-way radio system they had an important engagement to keep in Havana.

Charges Hospital Treated Outsiders

At renewed odds today were Dr. William A. Bryan Worcester state hospital superintendent, and State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley.

The latter charged that hundreds of outsiders, some of them from New Hampshire, were treated at the hospital without authorization. He said the number of such treatments totalled at least 700.

Buckley also charged that three doctors and a nurse, all aliens, are on the Worcester state hospital payroll, in violation of an agreement with the legislature.

HEPBURN MUM ON BRIDAL

Chicago, Jan. 22 (AP)—Complete secrecy covered the reported marriage plans of Katharine Hepburn, the actress, and Howard Hughes, sportsman-aviator, in Chicago today.

Miss Hepburn denied herself to interviewers. Hughes did likewise.

The county clerk's office, a beehive of activity yesterday as many employes took an impromptu holiday in anticipation of the couple's appearance for a license, was back to normal today.

Miss Hepburn remained in her suite in the Ambassador Hotel all day yesterday, despite reports that Hughes would lead her to the license bureau. Hughes, three floors away in the same hotel, arrived here in secret after a cross-country dash which set a new speed record, of less than 7½ hours.

A long line of spectators lined the courthouse corridors yesterday, held back by six special police officers. County Clerk Michael J. Flynn planned to issue the license himself.

The principals failed to arrive, although Flynn said he had "heard" they would.

But he gave up at 5 p. m., the regular office closing time.

Last night Miss Hepburn dashed to her automobile and made for a downtown theater, where she is appearing. She wore slacks, a la Hollywood.

After the show, she dressed her maid in the slacks and her own fur coat and attempted to elude the curious, dressed herself as the maid. About 2:45 a. m. she returned to her hotel, her escort was reported to have been her leading man, Dennis Hoey.

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

A MESSAGE FROM A FRIEND suggests that I might be a good person to [illegible] through the past few months and to some of the stories that appeared concerning [illegible]

Howard Hughes flew to Boston, with an explosive "cover-up," not so many days [illegible] with Miss Hepburn. He [illegible] about the [illegible] dressing room of the Colonial, watching part of her performance from the wings. In this space on Friday, January 12, these words appeared:

"Howard Hughes of the movements and the motion pictures . . . in Boston once. Had a ticket for the Hepburn show. . . . It rested in its rack at the Colonial box-office while Hughes relaxed in Mrs. Hepburn's dressing room. . . . Katharine is to fly to Chicago with him. Neither they took all together as a matter for Chicago papers to check as they are [illegible]

It was a very pleasant [illegible] and pretty Katharine and Leo Lindstrom at the [illegible] party, matrimony, which [illegible] denied. I believe [illegible] Since the above paragraph appeared here, Hughes has [illegible] his swollen neck [illegible] flying across the country [illegible] hours and 20 odd minutes. . . . Now the Chicago papers and [illegible] happy [illegible] one another's company out there. . . . The newspaper consensus is that they indeed are going to become Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hughes. For publication, however, [illegible] wire accounts describe them as [illegible]

And so, though [illegible] I cannot [illegible] as far as "this is one romance [illegible] IN SPITE OF THE SUSPENSE your reporter [illegible] half-written "Katharine Hepburn and Howard Hughes are going to be married!" Sorry.

Once Over Lightly:

says Mrs. A. J. Mankusky, 73 Walnut St., Oshkosh, Wisconsin.

I was very nervous and I had no pep. I didn't even feel like eating. My throat was filled with lumps and mucus that I didn't know what to do with. I had no appetite. Vegetable Compound I took in a few days. My color left my cheeks and I gained right from the first. I have a good appetite and sleep well. My husband says that I am looking as good as the day I met him. I recommend it to every girl and woman I see suffering as I did. Try it—see and you won't be without it.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

BY Ann Marsters

Hollywood, Jan. 22—We have been learning the jargon of the movie sets, and it seems that hardly anything is called by its right name.

Strangers coming from the outside world to visit the sets wonder at the strange language that these people speak, but once you catch on to it, you begin to think they're fairly sane, after all.

If the director says "Print that," it has [illegible] to do with [illegible] around [illegible] anything, [illegible] means a scene which is particularly good.

Someone yells "Call the gaffer." And a "gaffer," gentle readers, is the head electrician.

ANN MARSTERS

His first assistant is known as "best boy."

The huge bulbs which are used to light the sets are called "inkies." (I have no idea why—I must remember to find out.)

Bing Crosby's Winning Horse Causes Him Woe

We came across Jan. Crosby at the race track studio club and he told us that at the moment, he was having "mingled emotions."

"One of my own horses just came in at Santa Anita," he said, "and he paid over a hundred dollars. The only trouble is, that I told all my friends not to bet on him, because I didn't think he had a chance. Now, maybe you can imagine what my friends are thinking of me."

"If orderly processes of trade break down as a means for securing the goods, exchange of goods and the distribution of the necessary raw materials of the world, conflict will ensue.

AUSTEN LAKE

A Rooster's Crow: Nineteen-Year-Old Echo Comes to Life

TODAY A STRANGE THING HAPPENED, something that links the workaday present with the tragic war happening of nineteen years ago. The office telephone rang and the impersonal chirp of an operator said, "Providence calling." There was an interval on the wire like sounds of frying fat until a man's voice, slow and solemn, said, "This is Bill Broadfoot."

AUSTEN LAKE

Now, there has only been one other call made in my life, and that was Joe Broadfoot, a blocky ex-baker from Rhode Island who had been a tank corps' billet-mate in a French farm town named Bourg in the Haute Marne. He was a sandy haired youth with a comical cowlick, quizzical blue eyes and a taste for Cockney and Scotch dialect songs. He had an unquenchable, bubbling nature and when dependent black-moods swept the billet where he lived, he was handy with some crude, slapstick philosophy [illegible] He, above most men I [illegible] Lester. So we mourned [illegible] tank and a ma- [illegible] the muddle. We always said [illegible] German gunners hadn't known Joe [illegible] they couldn't have shot him [illegible] Broadfoot, you know Joe Broadfoot, I asked Lester, "Do you know Joe Broadfoot?" and answered, "Yes, better than myself."

THERE WAS A PENNY POST CARD

NOW THIS WAS DOUBLY STRANGE. Because Joe's only brother had been a lance corporal in the Black Watch, a kiltie whose picture on a penny post card he carried in the breast pocket of his tunic, where every soldier kept his keepsakes. I saw it only once and that was one day in the summer of 1918 when I found Joe weeping in a cobwebbed corner of our stable. He wasn't crying exactly, but just sat with his head cupped in his hands, shaking with silent sobs.

HE AND A SMALL SISTER

"NOW," SAID JOE, "WE ARE ALONE," and I knew he meant that he and a small sister, who lived in Rhode Island, were left, two of an orphan brood. Because, for all his whimsies and love for pounding out bar-room rhythms with the butt of his drinking crock, he had sat many evenings before tattoo by a guttering candle, scrawling notes to his sister. "So now we are alone," said, Joe, seeming to taste the words as he spoke.

LAST ARMISTICE DAY I WROTE A COLUMN of war reminiscence, mostly personal trivia which relived the Tank scene of that cold, ominous day. I mentioned Joe Broadfoot, as a kind of view-halloo down the years to a time-graved, half-forgotten ghost. Since then a letter came, typed beneath a heading which read, "Wespaw Decorating Company, 22 Mechanic Street, Westerly, R. I., painting and wall papering," and signed by one Michael McCarthy. It said, and I quote from the page which is beside me now, "You mention Joe Broadfoot. I slept with him the night before he got hit, and talked with him before he died. There was some buddy in his outfit who has, if still alive, a pocketbook with some pictures which his family might like to have. I thought we might be able to find out who that buddy was [illegible]

FRED HOEY Writes:

Hello Everybody, This is Fred Hoey Speaking.

We recall that Babe Ruth once hit a home run in Tampa, Fla., that carried 575 feet, which was accepted as the crowning slugging achievement. We saw Wally Berger hit a drive over the center field fence at old Braves Field. But Wallie made this tremendous drive close to 600 feet during batting practice when the pitcher gave him a Santa Claus ball. So, no dice on this one.

LEWIS HANEY FINDS

President's Speech

EXAMPLE OF

Extreme Idealism

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Jan. 22—Many commentators are dismissing President Roosevelt's speech as being good merely for what it did not say. This does not seem fair.

The President evidently wrote this speech himself and prepared his talk carefully. How, then, can anyone say that it was a good talk because he did not say anything?

He worked long on it and, according to press dispatches, made at least one trip to the library. I claim, therefore, that he must have had some important idea or ideas to express.

I find in it three main ideas: (1) A defense of idealism, (2) A subordination of science, and (3) an exaltation of centralization in government.

The underlying characteristic of Mr. Roosevelt's mental processes is an extreme acceptance of the notion that mind can dominate matter and that man can control his environment.

Thus, he says that "we" have found a way to control epidemics of disease, so "we" will not admit that "we" cannot master economic epidemics.

He goes to the length of arguing that ideals are the same as realities; for he says:

"We are beginning to wipe out the line that divides the practical from the ideal."

In other words, if "we" have any ideal—any dream or fancy—we are not to consider the practical difficulties which may prevent us from realizing it.

The President of the United States believes either that mind and ideals are the only reality, or else he believes that there is no difference between the real and the unreal!

Accordingly, he goes on to belittle science and to glorify what he calls morals. This is a symptom usually found in cases of extreme idealism.

It's practical significance is that he will not consider means, but looks only at the ideal ends or goals which he sets up. (Incidentally, this leads to the dangerous notion that "the end justifies the means.")

For example, the President says that the government enables "us" to "create those moral controls over the service of science which are necessary to make science a useful servant."

This could have been copied from some speech by Hitler. It is exactly the Nazi notion of subjecting science to control by the state and setting up a new religion (morals) as a means of control. He says:

"We must find practical controls over blind economic forces."

This means that he does not accept scientific laws or observed uniformities as final. He does accept his ideals as the controlling force.

Finally, he considers government as omniscient and omnipotent. (And since he considers himself as "leader," he must unconsciously think of himself, or his advisers, as having those qualities.)

He says that Democracy must act through centralized power, and that such Democracy has an "innate capacity" to solve all human ills.

Above all, note this: Mr. Roosevelt wants those who govern to work as "trustees of the whole people." Let me explain what that means.

A "trustee" is not a partner or an agent of the beneficiaries. A trustee is a principal! He takes legal title to any property involved, and manages it. The trustee form of organization places in the manager a discretion that is out of proportion to his actual responsibility.

Thus the "trust" was originally developed as a suitable agency for managing the property of incompetent persons.

Mr. Roosevelt has studied law.

The foregoing are, I think, the main points. Certainly they are the ones to which the speaker had given most thought.

He made it obvious that he is not disposed to make trouble now. He welcomed prosperity, though warning that it takes the steam out of radical ideals. He suggested an "era of good feeling."

All this is to the good.

Let us hope, however, that those underlying metaphysical notions will not go further than expression in an occasional fireside chat.

If we are ever led by promises of abundance and attacks on "wealth," to go in for dreams of Utopias and "happy valleys"—to be given us by a dictator who does not see any difference between the ideal and the practical—God help us!

AVERAGE Incomes STUDIED

ROOSEVELT PLEDGE

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Universal Service

President Roosevelt's second inaugural pledge "to provide enough for those who have too little," in business terms, opens up the vista of new markets within our gates.

Perhaps 20 per cent of those subject to gainful employment in the United States—sweatshop workers in the East, share croppers in the South and migratory agricultural workers in the Far West—have incomes vastly below the national average.

If their earnings could be made to approach nearer the national average it would enormously augment buying power and expand the market for ships, and shoes and sealing wax.

It is well to keep in mind that consumers are merely producers in another aspect. The economically sound way to stimulate consumption is to raise the authentic earning power to producers. A decisive turning point was reached in this country in 1914 when Henry Ford introduced the $5 a day wage.

Through the monetary incentive and through improved technology, Mr. Ford increased the productivity of the worker and enabled him to be worthy of his hire.

As the real income—in terms of goods and services—of workers increased, with other employers following the high wage principle, an colossal market for products was developed which exceeded previous experience. From a fact finding standpoint it is possible that the marvel at what has been accomplished and stop to explore the unplumbed fields which remain to be cultivated.

It should be borne in mind that it is not enough arbitrarily to mark up money wages. Lest the benefits be lost in inflationary price changes, it is necessary to step up the productivity of workers in order to absorb the higher wage rates. The very payment of a more abundant wage has repeatedly been sufficient incentive to cause a striking stepping in efficiency.

If money wages are raised through minimum wage legislation the result will be a more careful selection of man-power. There will be a tendency to weed out the unfit who are incapable of earning a minimum wage. They will become the real social problem.

Raising of the incomes of the lowest bracket up to the national income would sustain a balanced internal economy on a new high level. The groups—farmers, factory workers and the service occupations—give employment to one another and none can carry on a lasting trade with those on a subsistence level. Lifting the income of the submerged will not only help them and their dependents, but also distant groups who trade with them.

It is well to remember that your employes are the other fellow's customers.

Unquestionably the new promise of American life is potentially bright, but fulfillment of the hopes depends on co-operation between government and business, on the one hand, and between management and men, on the other.

Here is a chart that shows two strikingly different pictures of "national income."

Everybody knows that the national income declined precipitately during the depression. The broken line on the chart shows this.

However, on an index basis if we adjust the national income to the cost of living we get a better idea of the real value of the national income, as shown here is merely the purchasing power of the national income in terms of everyday necessities of life.

For comparative purposes the chart shows the distribution of the national income produced according to salaries, wages, dividends paid and interest payments.

It will be noticed that since 1929 the "real" value of all sources of the national income has always been greater than the actual value.

FEDERAL BUSINESS LAWS REVISION URGED

RETAILERS HEAR RICHBERG

New York, Jan. 22 (INS)—Proposal of a "national economic policy" through revision of federal business laws had been urged today by Donald R. Richberg, former head of the National Recovery Administration.

Speaking before the 26th annual banquet of the National Retail Dry Goods Association here Richberg offered three suggestions for major changes in federal law. They were:

1 Rewrite our federal business law to express plainly a national economic policy which is neither consistently nor clearly stated in the federal statutes today. This is not a proposal to write a lot of new laws but essentially to restate and clarify existing law.

2 Establish a commission with clearly defined and definitely limited powers to apply and to enforce this business law, so as to wipe out monopolistic and unfair practices which are universally recognized as evil, with appropriate provision for prompt judicial review of its orders.

3 Establish an administrative agency authorized to apply the regulatively defined policy in encouraging and aiding business men to co-operate in improving the fairness and efficiency of industrial methods.

Authorize this agency to give a temporary sanction to any such co-operative agreements which do not violate any of the legal prohibitions of monopolistic or unfair practices. Provide for the review of such sanctions by the enforcement commission on complaint of the government, of any competitor, or any other person alleging injury as a result of the approved agreement.

WARNER BROS. Plans Common

Warner Brothers Pictures is maturing plans for an offering of new common stock to stockholders to provide additional working capital.

The present idea is to offer about 925,000 shares of new common in a ratio of one new share for each four held at a price expected to be around $12.50 a share. Details depend on conditions at time actual offering is made.

Short Interest Off

New York Stock Exchange announced that the short interest in all stocks, as of December 31, 1936, totaled 1,136,814 shares, against 1,230,979 shares as of November 30, a decrease of 93,765 shares.

VIRGINIAN RAIL

Mellon Buys Working Control

New York, Jan. 22 (US)—Andrew W. Mellon, Pittsburgh capitalist and former Secretary of the United States Treasury, has acquired working control of Virginian Railway, an important coal carrier, in a deal involving $31,600,000, it was made known here.

The working control was purchased by Koppers Co., a Mellon Company, from the estate of the late E. H. Rogers, Standard Oil executive, according to announcement by Adrian H. Larkin, chairman of the board of the Virginian and a trustee of the Rogers estate.

A block of 236,000 common shares of the Virginian, slightly less than 40 per cent of the outstanding voting stock, was purchased by Koppers. Associated in the purchase were Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates, another Mellon company, and first of Boston corp.

Koppers Co., a large maker and distributor of coke as well as owner of extensive coal mines in West Virginia, is one of the Virginian's biggest shippers.

Over 90 per cent of the Virginian's traffic is coal.

The Mellon acquisition of the Virginian is said to be the biggest transfer of control of a railway property since the late Van Sweringen brothers announced in 1930 that they had scooped up control of Missouri Pacific Railroad.

CHASE BANK HEAD SPEAKS

Aldrich Doubts LENDING BY U. S. Is Sound Policy

Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank of New York, in an address before the Rhode Island Bankers' Association dinner in the Providence Biltmore Hotel last night, called for reconsideration of the "whole subject of government lending" to prevent ultimate economic dislocations arising from artificial credit ease thereby created.

Armed with statistics pointing to policies which have led to forced lowering of interest rates, he emphasized that such rates are the price of money, and that price control of any sort serves to nullify self-correction of errors.

Declaring that extremely low interest rates are not necessarily for economic recovery, Mr. Aldrich said that the various government lending agencies have brought about low interest charges by offering easy credit for various purposes. "More particularly," he said,

"rates have been automatically driven down by the depreciation of the dollar to a 59-cent gold basis. The consequence has been the creation of a false feeling of financial security and people act as though the country had suddenly become rich and prosperous.

"The fact is," he said, "that the firm foundation of prudence and thrift resulting from growing savings deposits is lacking and the air of prosperity is based on credit expansion rather than an increase in actual wealth.

"Money is a commodity which like any other is swayed by supply and demand. Under the present set-up of government lending organizations demand is being outweighed by the tremendous amount of money made available for borrowing.

"Consideration of the effect of these agencies should be non-partisan," he declared, "and should be applied from the standpoint of what role such organization should play in periods of prosperity as well as in periods of depression; whether their functions can be assumed by private agencies; what the real cost of their operations has been upon interest rates and credit standards, and whether they have brought about artificial ease in the field of installment credit and mortgage loans. There are 12 major government lending organizations at the present time as compared with only two prior to 1925."

Analyzing conditions which in addition to the activities of Federal agencies have brought about current low interest levels, Mr. Aldrich pointed particularly to monetary policies of the government which resulted in a sharp gain in Federal Reserve member bank excess reserves.

"Money available for lending is far in excess of demand," he declared.

"Because of these policies the exercise of its regulatory function on business credit has been prevented from taking place in the fluctuation of money rates. Errors resulting become cumulative and business fluctuations are magnified.

"Under such circumstances the commercial banking system is called upon to do that which it should not be expected to do if equilibrium is to be maintained. Government deficits and long-term investment requirements are financed by bank credit extensions. This artificiality can only be corrected when the main supply of the capital market comes from individual and corporate thrift.

"At present," he concluded, "the shadow has been substituted for the substance."

RAILS MAY BUY N. Y. Fair Bonds

Railroads will attempt to raise approximately $2,000,000 for purchase of New York World's Fair bonds, according to plans outlined at a meeting of the Eastern Railroad Presidents Conference.

Other business at the monthly meeting of the association was routine.

COTTON TEXTILES

Industry's POSITION Improves

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

The detailed monthly report of the Department of Commerce reveals that December was a busy period for American cotton manufacturers in general and New England mills in particular.

In terms of active spindle hours December saw the record-ing of the largest total since the record-breaking month of June 1933.

The excellent showing of the cotton textile industry is attributed to the continuance of heavy demand which enabled manufacturers to take advantage of the large number of December working days —despite Christmas—and the putting in operation of additional spindles in the New England area. Spindle hours, the real measure of work done, increased 15.9 per cent in the South against 8.2 per cent in the South during December, 1935. It should be noted, however, that the lead in aggregate total spindle hours is still held by the South.

While the position of the cotton textile industry is still considered good, there are those who believe in watch for signs of threatened overproduction. The first is a heightening of the usually weekly shift of active cotton spindles and the second is an increase in the number of spindles put back into use. A divided upping of stocks would not be a good indication and could go far toward cutting down the favorable margin between production and demand. We would watch for other unfavorable developments soon in the South and considerable increase in the number of active spindles by northern mills.

Notebook: Foster Wheeler is the recipient of many kind words lately from various brokerage and stock advisory sources. All because of growing expenditures for new equipment by utilities. Plus greater activity in the oil industry and a relatively new customer in the new graft mills in the south. Topped off by reports export business is better. . . . Timken Roller Bearing is benefiting from the spurt in rail equipment activity —especially locomotives. Manufacturing. Bearings and axles are the principal items, with operators of high speed trains particularly favoring Timken products.

The public appetite for stocks has been whetted by recent run-ups of individual issues. Result: a wave of speculative leaders along with activity in low priced specialties. And there are still a number of selected issues that are capable of displaying explosive qualities. However, numerous market forces are not particularly impressed and prefer to maintain a superficial attitude. They reason that the attitude tends to create the efficient atmosphere of active funds while providing a good safety valve in the event a sudden downturn overtakes stocks.

Boardroom Briefs: We have tried to keep step with the above theory by noting various groups and various leader issues during recent weeks. . . . Steel, General Electric and the artificial silk, packing and electric equipment industries. . . . And before that the aircraft, oil and utility groups. . . . Today it is becoming more and more difficult now to find these likely situations and we are quite hesitant to suggest any. However, for those in a position to assume such risks we note White Motor, Standard of New Jersey, Curtis Wright "A" and Celanese.

LOWER Price Trends RULE

FEW ISSUES ADVANCE

New York, Jan. 22—Falling prices dominated today's stock market proceedings although here and there favored issues continued to press forward.

With General Motors strike news darker than ever, traders hurried to cash in profits at the opening and declines of fractions to 3 points were widespread.

Dealings were unusually active in the first hour. Moderate support appeared later and extreme losses were pared on cancelled in many instances. The volume was restricted near the fourth period.

Bonds and commodities exhibited mixed trends.

Plunging downward during the greater part of the session were Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Republic, Crucible, Electric Auto-Lite, Deere, Douglas Aircraft, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, General Electric, Illinois Central, Southern Pacific, Atlantic Coast Line, Pennsylvania, Florida East Coast and Union Pacific.

Advances were recorded for selected oils, utilities and specialties. Among those were Barnsdall, Standard, Atlantic Refining, Standard Oil of N. J., Houston Oil, American Power & Light, American & Foreign Power, Consolidated Edison, International Paper & Power preferred, Crown Zellerbach, American Locomotive, Westinghouse, Omnibus, Paramount, R. H. Stern preferred, Eastern Steel and Continental Can.

Advances were recorded for selected oils, utilities and specialties. Among those were Barnsdall, Standard, Atlantic Refining, Standard Oil of N. J., Houston Oil, American Power & Light, American & Foreign Power, Consolidated Edison, International Paper & Power preferred, Crown Zellerbach, American Locomotive, Westinghouse, Omnibus, Paramount, R. H. Stern preferred, Eastern Steel and Continental Can.

Weather reports, it was said, spread retail demand over a wide assortment of goods, with sales for the country as a whole for the 5 per cent over the preceding week and 10 to 15 per cent above the corresponding week a year ago.

Commitments for summer merchandise in the wholesale divisions reached substantial proportions in the review found. Current shortages in some lines, the report added, presaged large future requirements for next season four months earlier than usual.

In indicating exchange transactions sterling was up 1-16 of a cent at $4.90⅝, and the French franc was off 10-16 of a cent at 4.66⅛ cents.

Texas & Pacific

Texas & Pacific Railway reports for year ended December 31, net income of $2,263,973 or $2.78 a common share against $1,582,278, or 31 cents on the common, in 1935.

A GREAT INAUGURAL ADDRESS

THE inaugural address of Franklin D. Roosevelt, initiating his second term as President of the United States, is a masterful statement of desirable objectives.

It is not a program for the attainment of those objectives.

It is an expression, and an admirable one, of the philosophy which at once shapes his high moral purpose and reveals to him the happy destiny he seeks for his country.

Having heard his philosophy, the nation must await his program.

Agreement with the principles which Mr. Roosevelt accepts as the guide of himself and of his administration is mandatory upon all men in whom love of country and faith in the Divine source of its liberties are the essentials of belief and conduct.

His message is an inspiring phrasing of American aspirations.

He brings to it a gift of expression that gives it a place among the truly great state papers of the nation.

That he brings to it also the strength of good resolve, the humility of a man aware of the weighty burdens public confidence has put upon him, the courage of sincere belief in the justice and wisdom of the course he conceives for the nation, is a fact to which the earnest language of his address is compelling witness.

No leader of men could more hopefully or humbly consecrate himself to the service of his country than President Roosevelt has done in these words:

"In taking again the oath of office as President of the United States, I assume the solemn obligation of leading the American people forward along the road over which they have chosen to advance.

"While this duty rests upon me, I shall do my utmost to speak their purpose and to do their will, seeking Divine guidance to help us each and every one to give light to them that sit in darkness and to guide our feet into the way of peace."

American opinion cannot divide upon these premises of advancement toward greater sharing of the opportunities our form of government creates, and toward enlargement of the benefits of American living to include all hitherto deprived of them.

The realities of living, of course, combine with the uncertainties of human judgement to inject the reminder that the attainment of good objectives rests upon the manner and method of approach to them.

For this practical reason, President Roosevelt is not done with his task in having set his course toward "the happy valley" which he termed "the goal of our vision on that fourth day of March, 1933."

The means of attainment are still to be chosen by him. The application of his philosophy to acts and deeds, to the progressive steps of constructive government and national policy, is the responsibility he must now transform from words into action.

The best promise that the unquestioned merit of his philosophical appraisal of the destiny of America will characterize his plan of future action is found in this significant paragraph of his inaugural address:

"This year marks the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Constitutional Convention which made us a nation. At that convention our forefathers found the way out of the chaos which followed the Revolutionary War; they created a strong government with powers of united action sufficient then AND NOW to solve problems utterly beyond individual or local solution."

Mr. Roosevelt thus expresses his faith that accomplishment of all the good things he envisages for America, the goals of social justice and of prosperity and security for all he people, rests not upon change in or departure from the American way of life but in increasing opportunities for attainment of that standard by all.

President Roosevelt is now embarked upon the phase of his service to the nation in which the historical estimate of his discharge of a great trust will be written.

Attesting him is a degree of confidence which the American people have given few men before him. He cannot betray that confidence, if his capacity for thought and action measures up to the moral heights of the philosophy of his inspiring inaugural pledge.

Opposition: The Backbone Of Democracy

THE two-party system is absolutely necessary if democratic institutions are to continue to function.

A strong opposition to the party in power—no matter which of the two major parties is in power in this country—is always a guarantee of sound government.

It is of greater importance to have an organized critical group, in our national legislative body particularly, than that group should always be right.

The Washington correspondent of the Hearst papers, George Rothwell Brown, had this pregnant paragraph in one of his recent despatches:

"FOR FOUR YEARS THE BESETTING SIN ON THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN CONGRESS HAS BEEN LAZINESS, PHYSICAL AND INTELLECTUAL. THIS CONDITION HAS BEEN APPARENT AT THE HOUSE, BUT EVEN MORE SERIOUS AT THE SENATE. IT IS A HARSH THING TO SAY, BUT A TRUE ONE, THAT THE REPUBLICANS IN CONGRESS, AS A PARTY, AND WITH BUT A FEW INDIVIDUAL EXCEPTIONS, HAVE BEEN NEGLECTING THEIR OPPORTUNITIES AND DUTIES FOR FOUR LONG YEARS."

This warning would apply just as pointedly if the party in power was the Republican party and the opposition the Democratic party.

The great danger in a democracy like ours is a tendency to UNANIMITY OF SENTIMENT. That way lies Communism or Fascism.

Laziness and inertia on the part of the Republican and even Democratic opposition in the present Congress, wherein the administration has such overwhelming support, is such a danger that even as vigorous a partisan as Postmaster-General Farley recently expressed the wish for "A STRONG REPUBLICAN OPPOSITION."

This is sound democratic doctrine.

Critical opposition is the breath of a free people.

Let us hope that Republican and Democratic opponents of administration measures as they arise will not fail in their duty to be heard.

It is better occasionally to be wrong than to "LAY DOWN."

A Free Press Means Peace

THAT country is free where THE PEN IS MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD.

Dr. Percival E. Cole, vice-chancellor of the University of Sydney, Australia, made this pertinent statement before the Southern Interscholastic Press Association at Lexington, Va., recently:

"AT THE PRESENT TIME IN A NUMBER OF EUROPEAN COUNTRIES THE SWORD IS DEFINITELY STRONGER THAN THE PEN. THERE THE PRESS IS NOT PERMITTED TO SPEAK FOR PEACE NOR EVEN TO PUBLISH FACTS THAT ARE CONSIDERED TO BE ADVERSE TO MILITARIST POLICIES."

The United States of America is the only major country in the world today wherein the press is UNANIMOUSLY FOR PEACE.

And it is the only major country in the world, not even excepting England or France, where the press does not "take orders."

Religion Wanes in Russia

THE religious census under way in Russia since the first of the year will reveal how completely Communism has banished religious beliefs from the minds of the Russian people.

According to a cable to the New York Times:

They report that an overwhelming majority of the people are now unbelievers."

The world must credit this appalling fact to Communism, as indeed Communists are mostly willing it should.

It is estimated that 43 per cent of the Russian population has been born under the Communist regime. One of the fundamental aims of Communism having been the eradication of all religious faith, the consequent wane of religion in Russia attests the success of the effort.

The experience of Russia reveals Communism as the implacable enemy of all peoples who acknowledge God, and of all nations which hold human faith to be inseparable from human destiny.

Marry —Go— Round

By Helen Rowland

Why do husbands leave home? Why does a man with a perfectly good wife slip from the straight and narrow path in search of diversion, adventure and change?

Helen Rowland

His favorite alibi is that his wife "doesn't understand him." But that is just an alibi. The real reason is that she probably understands him TOO WELL. He is no longer a glamorous novelty to her.

The girl of today is all bewildered about this thing. She hears the creaking of the wedding vows all around her, and she shivers at the thought of trying to make a permanent partnership out of what seems no more permanent than last summer's "permanent wave."

REAL REASON

She asks herself sadly if marriage IS merely the little interval between the wedding and the divorce. And WHY "eternal love" appears to last only from the first kiss to the real woman.

Why does a man think he needs a change of heart the moment one woman has become an old story to him?

Ah! But that's where the catch comes in! It must be cause his wife had become an old story to him, that he took around for a new diversion. It's because HE has become an old story to his WIFE.

When a man goes stepping it is not because he is looking for a new face, it's because he's looking for a brand new AUDIENCE.

He is looking for somebody to whom he is a deep, fascinating mystery and a "great big wonderful mental giant!"

Somebody to whom all his stories are new and who will greet them with a spontaneous laugh instead of with a pallid smile or a patient yawn.

Somebody who will applaud when he says or does something "brilliant" and will be deeply impressed with his magnificent wisdom and gratefully beg for masterly "advice." Somebody who will relieve him of all "inferiority complex."

Somebody who will be thrilled by his "line" and dazzled by all his little stunts. Somebody who will be flattered—and help him admire himself! Somebody whom he can surprise and astonish by occasionally being "understanding."

HE WANTS APPLAUSE

He says he is yearning for somebody who "understands him." But what he is looking for is somebody who doesn't. YET understand him, doesn't know his little weaknesses, has never had to pull the cold shower for him, never put his feet in mustard water, never uncovered his shins and doesn't know that he sleeps with his mouth open.

Somebody who flatters him and never tells him that he is getting fat or that his hair is getting thin on top. Somebody to whom HE is a brand NEW story!

What a man wants, when he suddenly goes haywire after 10 or 20 years of plodding domesticity and heartbeside devotion, is not a fresh romance but a little fresh APPLAUSE!

Get at the Roots!

By Nelson Harding

Though many limbs have been lopped off,
The vile growth does not die.
With ever renewed life it stands
Its horrid trade to ply.

Strike at the roots that give it strength
And keep the growth alive.
When they are severed from the trunk,
The Thing cannot survive.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Jan. 22—Thoughts while strolling. How about an old-fashioned tea room filled with Currier and Ives prints? What became of the Mills brothers? Pitiable grief. Mr. W. R. Hearst's for Arthur Brisbane. Renaissance note: Duke Cross with a Baron Wrangel and his polka dot bow.

O. O. McIntyre

Rhyme: A girl with zing is Toby Wing. Courtney Riley Cooper could pass for Jimmy Gleason at who'sa. Mrs. Walter Chrysler suggests a Watteau shepherdess in modern dress. Never see Al Smith around any more. How many remember the dubbie old Stanley?

Erna Hayes sounds like ringing a horse shoe. For languid grace I'll take Joan Crawford. And for the funniest newcomer to radio, Bid Silvers. That hotel in the 40's that had the first poisoned needle sensation. Hope: To look as slick and dressy as Conde Nast at his age.

Another rhyme: What a beautiful mate is Grant Rice's Kate. That delightful period when skyscraper windows catch the dying sun in rosy bonfire. Eddy Duchin's enormously long arms and fingers. Table-turning note: Berlin scientists are making silk purses of sows' ears.

Broadway's No. 1 sentimentalist: Gene Buck. Cute cocktail time tricks all flossed up for the dinner hour. Tear a piece of cloth and you almost call Gene Sarazen. Billy De Beck spatted, for goodness sakes. Imagine a jig toting the taxi driver: "Iridium room, please!"

More and more is Theodore Dreiser becoming the literary heroic. He remains at his great estate near Mt. Kisco until heavy weather sets in and then comes to his apartment at the upper Broadway Astoria. He attends few literary teas now and entertains only established friends. In such relaxations he continues to fold and unfold his handkerchief while roaring disapproval of things as they are. Time has not mellowed him. He remains the fiery iconoclast. Now and then late waylaters see him barging to a midnight movie. But that is largely the extent of his public appearance.

London visitors tell of another interesting American exile in the heiress Barbara Hutton. Her rather tragic life has perked up a mite since her marriage to the Danish noble. And in London she has amplified a social place New York denied her because of a shiny attitude toward the five and ten cent store background. Her friends over here are real West End awells and her dinners land right under the Court Calendar in the social columns. There are many who believe she will never return to New York permanently.

On an upper East Side block appears each morning a shabby line of men who report and then keep in telephonic touch all day. They are registered and professional blood donors who make a living responding to calls at hospitals to give blood by transfusion. They are paid $7 per 100 cubic centimeters of blood and many have been occupying this strange occupation niche several years. Old timers feel a slight giddiness after a transfusion, but this lasts only an hour or so.

Representative Raymond J. Cannon of Wisconsin thinks we ought to have nothing to do with the coronation of King George VI. He prepares a resolution for Congress, by which we would assert our eternal aloofness from such medieval goings-on.

This, of course, won't disturb the British in the least, whether the resolution is adopted or not. They are working day and night on their Coronation plans.

Edwin C. Hill

Their Royal Court of Claims, established in 1377, already has been settling disputes about various ritualistic services, naming, among others, the official pantaloon-on for the King. It has appointed seven eminent men to carry the King's gold spurs. Disputes between the Dean and Chapter of Westminster and the Bishops of Bath, Durham and Wells as to these kingly offices have been quietly settled.

Down in Washington, there was perhaps a bit of back-biting among rivals for the inaugural spotlight, but nothing so colorful, interesting or exciting as this ritual. Those frock-coat gab orders on the crown symbolize the independent sovereignty of the monarch. That has passed long since, of course, but the symbol remains.

AN ECHO OF LONG AGO

One could spend a lifetime in study, and write long books on the story of empire — of glory and grandeur and blood and tears, of noble aspiration, of change and futility. When the King has received his gold spurs from the seven illustrious bearers, he will place them on the altar, to signify his fealty to the church.

The age-long struggle between material and spiritual power, the clash of King and Parliament, the outreach of Elizabethan England beyond the seas are revisited here in gold, sapphires, rubies and diamonds, and in the stately observance of the coronation. It is an echo from an age long gone.

The King already has summoned his courtiers, and bearers, but in a column of tightly-packed type in the London Times, addressing each as "our right trusted and well-beloved," he concludes with this lingly ukase:

"Give them attendance at the said solemnity, in all respects furnished and appointed as to so great a solemnity appertaineth, and answerable to the Dignities and Places which everyone respectively holdeth and enjoyeth, and of this they, or any of them, are not to fail, as will answer the contrary at their peril."

The King has three crowns. The first, and most important, is the historic crown of King Edward the Confessor, known also as King Edward's Crown. It was made for the coronation of Charles II after the commonwealth had destroyed the original. Weighing five pounds, it is set with 2000 diamonds. One of these is the famous Cullinan diamond of 309 carats, which weighed two pounds when it was mined, and was cut into smaller stones because it would have smashed the world diamond market if left intact.

The second circlet, the Imperial State Crown, was made for Queen Victoria in 1838. Reposing there is the Black Prince ruby, as large as a hen's egg. Pedro the Cruel, King of Castile, killed the Moorish King of Granada to get this stone, in the fourteenth century. There is also the famous great sapphire from the crown of Charles II, known as the Stuart sapphire. Queen Elizabeth's earrings supply another detail.

The third crown, the Imperial Crown of India, was made for George V when he was crowned Emperor of Delhi. This was necessary because the law forbade the removal of the crown of England from the country. It cost $200,000.

PRICELESS JEWELS

The crown of England is too heavy to wear and is held for an instant over the King's head by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Then it is replaced by the Imperial state crown. There are three queen's crowns, or diadems, and five dog's. All the head of the king's sceptre is the greatest diamond in the world, the Star of Africa, placed there by King Edward VII. It weighs 516½ carats.

There are two golden orbs, the king and queen each holding one, symbolizing the dominance of the Christian religion throughout the world. St. Edward's gold staff, nearly five feet long, and equally, is four feet, seven and one-half inches in length.

The Almonio, or golden eagle, and the anointing spoon are important and unique ceremonial devices. The golden eagle's beak is filled with "nearing oil" which is poured from the eagle's beak into the golden spoon. The king is then anointed.

Garrard & Company, court jewelers, are lightening up the coronation regalia for the future fit, the more happy and prosperous the reign. Since the eleventh century the ring with the large violet-colored ruby and 26 diamonds has been placed on the king's fourth finger. The legend is that St. Edward gave the original to St. John the Evangelist, who, unsuspectingly, in the guise of a beggar. In Palestine, St. John gave the ring to a wayfarer, with instructions to give it back to Edward, with assurance of his blessing for his charity.

Some of us can remember Bill Nye's persistent spoofing of royalty, when he wrote a bit raffish with one shiny new democracy. He played many variations on the theme of Victoria's crown dropping into the soup when she had company.

JOKES IN BAD TASTE

We have mended our manners since then and we can understand Queen Victoria. We've joked about the crown are in bad taste, and it will be particularly so during the next few months of May 12th, the Coronation date, approaches.

But democracy has few symbols,—one of its shortcomings perhaps—and we are not quite sure what we really believe in really venerate.

But perhaps we will have found out by the time we are as old as England and like England, retreads our belief in solemn and beautiful ritual.

Or will the swift onrush of the years put an end to all that? In a changing world, England keeps open a golden highway to the past. Perhaps she is wise.
